

Conelrad Proves Success

It Scrambles Radio Beams to Prevent Navigation 'Fix' By 'Enemy' Planes

MITCHEL FIELD AIR FORCE BASE, N.Y. (AP)—Heavy Air Force bombers, posing as "enemy attackers," sought to ride scrambled broadcasting beams to American cities early today in the first National Civil Defense test of Conelrad.

Experts of Civil Defense, the Federal Communications commission and the Air Force appeared confident the planes were thwarted by Conelrad, the radio operation designed to block any possible enemy use of broadcasting beams to lead bombers or guided missiles to American cities.

The test was conducted between 1:30 a.m. and 4:30 a.m., local time. Air Force fliers on the East Coast finished their missions, flying from far out at sea, just about the time the test was starting in the Far West.

Newsmen were taken up over this Long Island base in an Air Force transport and had an airman's view of the test. The reporters heard the garbled radio reception, making it impossible to identify local radio stations, and saw the radio compass direction finder in the cockpit waver uselessly.

From Hamilton Field, Calif., another air force plane was scheduled to carry a second group of reporters aloft.

Thousands of FCC observers and civil defense personnel took part in the test, spokesmen said. The exact number of Air Force planes was not disclosed.

Cooperating in the test on a voluntary basis, FCC officials here said, were 1,300 of the nation's 2,100 am radio stations. Those participating could be heard clearly in their immediate localities. It was only off the ground that reception was mixed and garbled.

This, officials explained, was the advantage of Conelrad over the World War II method of shutting down all broadcasting; it permits local authorities to advise people in their areas during emergencies while frustrating an enemy from finding a U. S. target by getting a navigation "fix" on a radio station in a large metropolitan area.

FCC and civil defense officials here said Canada, Mexico and most Western European nations had developed systems similar to Conelrad. They said Russia presumably has a similar plan.

Conelrad first was tested in 1951 by the FCC. In this secret trial and others no plane was successful in using radio beams for navigation.

Today's test brought civil defense authorities into the picture for the first time, plus the largest number of participating stations. Commercial airline aviators also were asked to watch their radio compasses and make reports to the FCC.

Officials here said the system has an "acute need" for more participating stations, especially in the rural areas; and they said some radio stations had failed to meet commitments to participate.

Conelrad is short for "control of electromagnetic radiation." The system keeps as many AM radio stations as possible on the air, with the largest stations reducing power and every participating station shifting to a frequency not its own. Thus, an approaching enemy plane is provided with not a single beam, but more than it can handle.

The scramble renders direction finders on planes useless. Only two broadcasting frequencies—640 kilocycles or 1,240 kilocycles—are used. The station shifts are to either of these two positions on the dial.

An approaching enemy bomber would receive signals on the two beams from many cities, and would be unable to tell where they came from.

On these frequencies the 1,300 stations, which participated today continued to function, some carrying regular programs and some carrying special civil defense test programs. In a real emergency the participating stations would operate for the benefit of the local populace and for whatever use civil defense desired to put them.

San Francisco Has One Registered Red

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Only one person is now registered as a Communist on San Francisco's voting rolls, a sharp drop from the 149 listed in 1943, the peak year.

The lone Communist registered as John Sedak, a Yugoslavian-born, naturalized tailor who first registered as a Communist in 1942.

Wagner Rolls Up 2 to 1 Edge Over Impellitteri

Manhattan Borough President Wins Mayor Nomination In New York Demo Primary

NEW YORK (AP)—The New Deal wing of the Democratic party in New York administered a resounding defeat to the conservative branch in scoring a near clean sweep of city primary elections yesterday.

Manhattan Borough President Robert F. Wagner Jr. rolled up almost a 2 to 1 margin over incumbent Vincent R. Impellitteri for the nomination for mayor.

Wagner's candidates also won nomination in the two contests for other city-wide offices and in three of four contested races for nomination as borough president.

With returns totaled from 4,260 of the city's 4,392 election districts, Wagner led Impellitteri by 335,413 to 176,003.

The election represented a major triumph for such nationally known Democrats as Rep. Frank J. La Follette Jr., Sen. Herbert H. Lehman and Averell Harriman, former mutual security director.

The outcome appeared to curb an attempted political comeback

Let Employees Know More About Firm

That Is Advice Given Sedalians At KC Conference

Nine Sedalians who attended the "Explaining Your Business" conference held in Kansas City Tuesday came back with enthusiasm and new ideas on what they might do to improve their business.

One of the greatest problems in business today is the fact that owners and managers of business firms do not explain their businesses to their employees and the public in general and from this has come misunderstandings, one speaker pointed out.

The new trend, according to the outstanding speakers at the conference, is to let the employees know what is going on, have meetings where the running of the business is explained to the employees, where they are asked to make suggestions for improvements and give their ideas—from the top employees down to the smallest employee.

Places that have put this into practice have found that often some of the best ideas come from the little fellow in the firm, it was pointed out. In many places there are suggestion boxes that have proved very valuable. Employees like to be a part.

One of the speakers told about a young woman employee who went into the manager and asked that the women be included in the session, where employees were told about the business and gave suggestions. The manager had never thought of that and found that the interest of the women in the firm was very keen and they had some fine ideas.

The point of view from one employee was that the most important thing to make a job enjoyable is to realize that you are serving in an important, as well as useful, capacity. Then the job will be interesting enough that you will do it with enthusiasm and efficiency.

The thing stressed by the speakers was freedom, which is American, and coordination between employer and employees.

The speakers were Paul H. Good, manager, education department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who talked on "The Power of People"; Conger Reynolds, director of public relations department, Standard Oil Company, Chicago, Ill., who talked on "Good Community Relations Make Friends For Your Business"; Ben R. Bennett, public relations, Republic Steel Corporation, Cleveland, and John C. Talbot, industrial engineer, Republic Steel Corporation, Youngstown, O., who discussed "A Program To Explain Business and the American Economic System"; Arthur H. (Red) Motley, president of the Parade Publications, New York, who talked on "Use It Or Lose It."

"What's Right — and What's Wrong — With Employee Communications Program?" was discussed by a panel of Kenneth W. Lindbergh, president, Black Sivalis and Bryson, Inc., Kansas City; moderator, Hugh Foster, Lancaster, Pa.; Col. H. R. Kibler, Chicago; Charles A. Dilly, Cleveland.

Those making the trip to Kansas City from Sedalia were: Claude L. Boul, Floyd Priddy, Chester Wolf, Mrs. Anna Bagby, Mrs. Elie Warren, Jack Shoemaker, Al Zurcher Jr., Carleton Kelly and Chester A. Brown.

Cop Inspects Pot. Crab Samples Finger

BALTIMORE (AP)—Sgt. Paul Aires, leading a police search in the house of a suspected numbers writer, saw a pot sitting on a stove and thought it might contain the evidence.

He lifted the lid, ran his hand inside and let out a yell.

A crab had him by the finger, Aires testified in police court yesterday.

Officers located five numbers books hidden around the house.

The defendant, Alford Jasper, 67, was ordered held for the grand jury under $3,500 bond.

Democrats Gaining Confidence

National Chairman Says Party Will Carry the Battle To GOP This Fall

CHICAGO (AP)—National Chairman Stephen Mitchell said today that resolidified Democrats will carry the battle to the Republicans "with new confidence" in the special congressional elections this fall.

Mitchell summed up as highly encouraging the results of a national rally which wound up here last night with a call by Adlai E. Stevenson for the Eisenhower administration to "think afresh" about seizing the initiative from Russia in the cold war.

Stevenson, the 1952 presidential nominee, and former President Truman both have signified willingness to campaign for the party in next year's critical congressional elections, Mitchell said at a news conference.

The national chairman said Stevenson probably will make two talks this fall, but not in connection with special elections to fill house of representatives vacancies in Wisconsin, California and New Jersey.

"As a result of our meeting here and the better understandings reached between disparate elements of the party, we have greater confidence for the 1954 elections and for special elections before that," Mitchell said.

He said a party rally similar to the one held here is being planned for later in the year at a mid-Atlantic city, he didn't wish to name. He added that a smaller rally may be held in a southern state.

The national chairman announced that he will name Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh to head a committee designated to study revision of the party's so-called loyalty oath before the 1956 convention.

He said Rep. Rayburn of Texas, the House majority leader, will be one of the members but he will take his time in filling out the committee personnel.

The compromise action setting up this committee was approval of Governors John Battle of Virginia and Hugh White of Mississippi, and other Southerners. It was calculated to quiet the loyalty oath row which had threatened to split the party.

Mitchell made it clear, however, that he personally doesn't intend to recognize any Democrat who runs on another party ticket.

This came out in his comment that he doesn't regard Rudolph Halley, running on the Liberal Party ticket for mayor of New York, as a Democrat in good standing.

"He's not a Democrat with me if he's running on another party ticket," Mitchell declared.

"There is a fundamental question of party responsibility involved. These non-partisan and fusion movements only blur party lines."

He said he expects James A. Farley, who backed Mayor Impellitteri in the latter's unsuccessful race against Robert M. Wagner Jr. for the Democratic mayoral nomination, now to get behind Wagner.

There have been indications that Impellitteri might run again. In this connection Mitchell said he doesn't "hold with having a primary and then going off and running on another ticket."

In response to a question, Mitchell said he didn't find himself in disagreement with the proposal made by Stevenson last night that the United States test Russia with an offer of a double-edged non-aggression pact and a chance to agree on disarmament.

Green Switch Pulls Switch

Fired as Arrow From Boys Bow—Green Willow Branch Causes Power Cut-Off Here Tuesday

A green willow branch, fired into the air as an arrow from the bow of a young archer, caused a 40 minute disruption in electric power for about one-third of Sedalia and a wide area around the city at 6:40 p.m. Tuesday.

The boy shot the small limb, 50 inches long and about as big around as a pencil, at 11th and Limit and there it fastened itself on the wires of a 12,000 volt feeder line of the Missouri Public Service Co. There was enough snap in the green limb to allow the current to short through and when it did all the current on the line was cut off.

A man in the neighborhood, realizing the stick was causing the trouble, tossed another stick into the air in an endeavor to push the burning branch from the wires. MPS officials reported later the man was lucky not to have been killed.

When the branch crossed the

This is the green willow branch which caused a black-out in the west and north-east area of Sedalia, and some of the rural areas, Tuesday night after it had been fired as an arrow and shorted out 12,000 volt feeder lines at 11th and Limit. The arrows point to the charred spots where the current almost burned the stick in two.

Russians Claim East Germans' Surplus Food Is Being Smuggled

BERLIN (AP)—The Russian zone claimed today it has so much food many East Germans are smuggling it into the West.

The Customs Bureau contended its frontier force has seized more than 10 tons of fruit and vegetables and almost 7,000 eggs at border points leading to West Berlin.

The statement in the Communist newspaper, Neues Deutschland, amounted to a counter propaganda attack against the American food parcel campaign still drawing up wards of 25,000 East Germans daily to West Berlin distribution stations.

Bureau Director T. Ruh said the smuggling "destroys the American legend that the people of the (East) German Democratic Republic are hungry."

Airliner Crashes, Explodes, Burns Taking 28 Lives

All Persons Aboard Die Early Today Near Albany, N. Y., Airport; 12 Bodies Thrown Clear of Wreckage, Others Trapped Inside

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—An American Airlines plane crashed, exploded and burned with a loss of 28 persons—all aboard—near the Albany airport today.

The Convair, en route from Boston to Chicago, pitched into a small lot near the Albany-Schenectady highway, about 3½ miles from the airport.

The plane exploded and burned rapidly. About a dozen passengers were thrown clear of the wreckage. The others were trapped in the flaming ship.

The cause of the crash was not determined immediately.

John W. Hodd, 23, an ex-navy pilot who lived nearby, said he heard the engine cut out and then roar as if the pilot had "gunned it."

Hodd said that when he saw the crash he ran to the door of the plane and tried to open it but was driven back by the flames.

Another witness, Mrs. Alice Finney, who lived at the trailer camp near the scene of the crash, said the plane seemed to explode. Then she said, she saw a "shot of flame" that died immediately.

Lester Hansen, truck driver, said he saw the plane circling low over the area. "It backfired a couple of times and then came down fast at about a 45-degree angle."

The Convair just missed the trailer camp.

The accident scene was about six miles east of Schenectady city line and eight miles west of Albany.

Inspector Joseph Sayres of the state police said he believed the 28 passengers, the pilot and co-pilot and the stewardess were killed outright.

The air line office at Chicago listed the following as members of the crew:

Capt. James W. Stentz, Highland Park, Ill.

1st Officer William J. Schanken, Chicago.

Stewardess Janice Thornquist, Duluth, Minn.

Plans for every business firm taking care of his own decorations this year are underway and the progress of such plans was discussed Wednesday morning at a meeting of the Christmas decorations committee of the Chamber of Commerce, presided over by Harry Naugel.

The committee proposes as a basis a string of colored lights and each business firm may go from there as elaborately or as simply as desired. The idea of the lights, from 12 to 18 inches apart, is to outline the building. The remainder of the decorations will be up to each firm as to originality, design and expense.

These lights will be turned on the Friday after Thanksgiving, Nov. 27, at 5 p. m. all over town. This type of decoration has been tried in a number of other towns and has been found to be the most satisfactory of all Christmas decorations and a means of bringing many people to the town.

All local electricians are well informed on this type of decoration, they have attended several meetings and each business firm may contact its own electrician to have lights put up or to find out the cost.

The greatest cost will come this year. After that the decorations will be permanent and may be added again and again, with more used each year if desired.

The retail merchants committee is anxious that business firms start immediately on their Christmas lighting plans. A number of firms already have purchased their decorations and have made arrangements to have them put up.

In each block there will be a captain to help other firms with their decorations, if they need help and advice. The captains are: Gerald Cecil, George Curritt, John Carroll, Charles Hoffens, Charles Maggard, Victor Scott, Mrs. Florence Thomas, Mike O'Connor, J. Harold Seaberg, Donald Weller, Arthur Hoffman, Charles Bernard, Thurlow Puckett, Richard Goodheart, Richard Coe, M. G. Goodrich, Bob Wall, William Greer, Ernest Graves, George Lockie, Richard Trueman, Carl Abbott, Bob Cain, Jack Cunningham, Kenneth Buchholtz, K. C. Linke, Dick Battles, Leo Dick, G. V. Jones and Wayne Richardson.

Mrs. Anna M. Bagby, director of civic activities, and her committee are also planning a Christmas lighting program in the residential district in cooperation with the business firms to make Sedalia this year a place of Christmas lights and beauty.

More Ex-POWs Arrive In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Four hundred twenty-eight more American former prisoners of war in Korea arrive today (1 p.m. EST) on the Gen. William Black. The transport is bringing 351 soldiers, 56 airmen, 16 Marines and five Navy men—plus 1577 soldiers and 8 airmen home on rotation.

More Than 2 Million East Germans Died During Mass Flight

BONN, Germany (AP)—Over two million East German civilians died in mass flight from the Russian Army in 1944 and 1945, an official survey published here said today.

Of the original population of over 11 million in the former German territories east of the Oder-Neisse line only one million still are living there now.

The rest either died or were forced westwards, the survey said.

These figures were published in the first two volumes of a six-section historical and statistical study of the fate of the East Germans at the end of World War II.

Olen Brown Visits Home Over Weekend

By Mrs. Joe Burnfin
CROSS TIMBERS—Olen "Buster" Brown, stationed in Kansas with the Air Force, was home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Brown, over the Labor Day weekend. His aunt also visited them Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Marsh, daughter, Jean, and baby, of Wheatland, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burnfin were guests of Mrs. Meda Burnfin and Lucy Bybee.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wise, of Kansas, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Gimes and Nadine, and his mother, Mrs. Viola Wise, Eunice and Teddy on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burnfin left Friday to attend a birthday celebration honoring her father, W. O. Brengle, at Buffalo, S. D.

Pat Twomey is vacationing in San Diego, Calif., visiting his mother while there.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Hickman have moved from Springfield back to their farm north of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Hadley, South Plymouth, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Noah Wilson, Clinton, visited the home of Meda Burnfin and Lucy Bybee last Monday. They called at the Joe Burnfin home that evening to see their new grandson.

Murry Young, Kansas City, worked on his farm over the weekend, taking advantage of the good rainfall last week.

Two Knob Noster Families Return From Canada

Knob Noster — Mrs. W. C. Richeson, Sue, Allan and Billy, have returned from a ten day vacation trip. They visited her sister, Mrs. Lawrence Chapin and family, Pontiac, Mich., and friends in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Harold Helms returned home Wednesday from a month's vacation. They visited the Black Hills, Yellowstone and Glacier Park. In Canada they visited Lake Louise, Banff and Jasper Park. Enroute home they spent several days in Blair, Neb., with his mother, Mrs. J. E. Helms.

Mont Kendrick, Kansas City, spent the weekend with his father J. M. Kendrick. He returned on Monday from Denver, Colo., where he visited friends.

Mrs. Zibba Matthews, Archer City, Tex., came Wednesday to visit her sons Larry and Merle Matthews and their families.

Mrs. Leo Frame, Kansas City, returned to her home Friday following a visit since Tuesday with her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Carr and Jim Bob.

Mrs. Milton Kendrick and Mrs. Charles S. Rhodes spent Wednesday in Kansas City.

David Mont Meeker, Berkeley, Calif., spent several days with his grandfather, J. M. Kendrick and family. His parents are moving to Detroit, Mich., and he was en route there. He recently received his discharge from the army after serving in Korea.

The Oatis Story—

Innocent Records Are Twisted In Red Questioning of Oatis

By William N. Oatis

I walked the floor furiously and called myself a fool.

It was Tuesday, April 24, 1951, and I was in a Prague office of the Czechoslovak Communist secret police, who had arrested me the day before.

On a desk lay several little black books I had kept in line with my work as an Associated Press correspondent. One had names and telephone numbers of friends in Prague — foreign diplomats and Czechoslovak citizens. Others contained notes of information I had obtained from some of these people — news and background.

I had kept the books almost by force of habit. In the United States and Britain, where I had worked before going to Prague 10 months before, it may have been a good habit. In Czechoslovakia, it certainly was not.

One Man Alone
Because now, two police interpreters—one with curly black hair and one with hardly any hair at all — sat in that office in a big quiet building on narrow Bartholomew Street and asked me questions about those books — those notes, and those names. That was why I berated myself.

The police called me a spy. I regarded myself rather as a legitimate journalist. But I knew they objected to my gathering news from other than official sources. If I was on the spot for doing that, the people who gave me such news were on the spot, too.

I owed it to my news sources to protect them. That was a principle of journalism. Reporters in America had no right to testify against their informants. But as I compared my lot with theirs, I was dismayed. They had means to defend themselves: legal advice, public opinion and civil-rights guarantees.

I had none of those. I was one man alone against a powerful and ruthless force. I knew the secret police could hold a prisoner for years without charge, without a trial and incommunicado. They could hold him till they got what they wanted out of him. What they wanted out of me, to begin with, was information on my news gathering.

"Give Us The Names"
"We want to know the names of Czechoslovak citizens who gave you unofficial news," said one policeman.

"I can't tell you that," I said. But I felt utterly helpless. That Tuesday I was questioned till long after midnight.

The interrogation went on all day Wednesday, too.

That night, the man picked up my address book and said, "Which of these people gave you unofficial news?"

"I can't tell you."
"Why not?"
"Journalistic ethics."
"If you don't tell us which ones," the man threatened, "we will arrest them all."

Two Choices, Both Bad
On the face of it, it looked this way: If I gave in, there was a chance some people would get hurt. If I did not, there was the certainty that more people would be.

I said, "All right, I'll tell you." I gave the interpreter a list of names and, with each name, the class of data I had got from that person — such things as "Prague rumors" and "Brno rumors."

"Will this get them into trouble?" I asked.

"Why should it?" he said. "Why is it nothing — 'Prague rumors,' 'Brno rumors,'"

Blindfolded William N. Oatis is led from Prague jail cell in this sketch by AP Artist John A. Carlton.

Another interpreter also sought to soothe my anxiety. "Do you think we are stupid? Do you think we would arrest all those people? Do you think we want to make enemies? There are many people we do not arrest. We just call them in and say, 'Look, don't be stupid.'"

The First Confession
I let myself be lulled by these words — as I also let myself be lulled by the same man's sly suggestion that, once I had given the police what they wanted, they would expel me from the country. That night, I signed my first confession.

In my notes was a list of places in and near Prague reported to be the actual or projected sites of military installations.

I had got this list from Lt. Col. George L. Atwood, U. S. military attaché, when I had gone to him to check a report from another diplomat along the same line.

When the police learned all this, they laid a typewritten sheet before me to sign. It read:

"I gathered military information on the territory of the Czechoslovak republic."

"I committed espionage on the territory of the Czechoslovak republic."

Short Law Course
I refused to sign the paper till I had been made familiar with the law on espionage. I wanted to be sure that gathering information, in itself, constituted espionage. And I wanted to know what penalty my signature would lay me open to.

The bald-headed interpreter pulled a Czech legal pamphlet from a file and read me a few paragraphs in English.

Whether he garbled the citations or whether I misunderstood him, I got the idea that the collection of ANY military information in Czechoslovakia is a menacing, came the interpretation: "You are now facing the state power of the Czechoslovak republic!"

They Shouted Questions
I knew the voices. They were voices of Communist secret policemen that had arrested me five days earlier and questioned me from early morning till late at night on each succeeding day.

Now, boasting of their authority, they started in again, three or four of them talking by turns.

The chief interrogator shouted questions about the list of military sites.

"Where did you get that?" he demanded.

"From Col. Atwood."
"What did you want it for?"
"Just for my own information. I didn't intend to use it in a story."

There were perhaps two hours like that. Then I was allowed to take off my blindfold.

The office had a table and chairs and was not nearly so large as I had imagined. Soft morning light came through the second-floor windows.

Two plainclothes detectives got me some breakfast.

Jan's Note Again
I was asked about a man named Vladimir Komarek, alias Josef Kulhanek. I had seen the name Komarek for the first time on a police document a few days before. I had heard about the man from my Czech employees. But I had never met him. All I knew was that he was a Czech refugee from Paris who was in and out of his homeland from time to time on mysterious missions.

But three of my employees were acquainted with him, and they were under arrest. And the police said Komarek was a foreign agent, and that another acquaintance of his had shot and killed one of their men some two months before.

I insisted I had never even seen Komarek. So they asked me about another man — Jan Stransky, a former employee of the United Press in Prague.

Stransky, on a Sunday pass from a labor camp, had been serving time for plotting to flee the country, had visited my office, saying he was hunting for Russell Jones, the UP chief in Prague.

He said he was going to get out of camp in a few months, and hoped he could get his job back. I agreed to take a note from him and give it to Jones when I saw the latter. Next day I saw Jones at a "world student congress," and gave it to him. He read it and tore it up, throwing away the pieces.

Now the police asked: "Do you know what was in that letter?"

"No," I said. "I didn't read it."

Questioned For 24 Hours
They handed me the letter, pasted together. Stransky had advised Jones that he suspected an other United Press employee, a Czech, of being a police spy. He had given the grounds for his suspicion — incidents the police had questioned him about before putting him in the camp.

"Is that espionage?" an interrogator said.

"Yes," I replied.

I should have said, "I don't know."

Instead, I gave the answer the police expected; they were interpreting the law for me, and I felt I must accept their interpretation. They had impressed me that

It goes hard with the prisoner failing to admit an obvious fact.

There followed question after question, hour after hour. I had been under interrogation 24 hours. I was dead tired, fighting sleep, swaying on my feet, and they would not let me sit down.

"You'll Be Sorry"
I said, "I'm not going to answer any more questions."

"Why not?"
"I'm sleepy. I'm not going to answer any more questions tonight. I want to go to bed."

"You'll be sorry you said that," they whisked me downstairs, handcuffed my wrists together in front of me and led me out to a small Skoda sedan. Two policemen were in front. Two others were in back, and I sat between them, blindfolded and bent forward with my head between my knees. I thought, "Here I go to Pankrac Prison."

Why just look and sigh—and pass up so much real automobile?

Why—when this big and beautiful new Buick SPECIAL delivers for a figure you'd pay for a "six"?

Could be you're one of those folks who still don't believe that the price of a Buick really is just a few dollars more than that of the so-called "low-priced" cars.

So we'll show you the price tag to prove it.

But beyond that—what you get in this great Buick, for so small a step-up in what you pay, is plenty.

More power. Fireball 8 power. The highest horsepower and compression ratio ever placed in a Buick SPECIAL.

More room. Real six-passenger room—even by man-size measurement.

More comfort. The solid comfort of Buick's Million Dollar Ride—with coil-spring cushioning on all four wheels, wide-tread stability, torque-tube steadiness.

More pleasure. The pleasure of high visibility, of luxurious fabrics and fittings, of superbly easy handling—and the deep satisfaction of bossing a big and able and stunningly styled automobile that does you proud wherever you go.

Why not drop in on us and see things for yourself?

That way you'll also learn about the long list of "extras" you get at no extra cost in this spirited new 1953 Buick SPECIAL—things that most other cars of similar price charge for as extras. Can you make it this week?

Come in and ask us about the low delivered price on this

Two Occasions Honored At Celebration

The Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Schedler, Stover, were guests of honor at a celebration held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Stover Sept. 6 in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary, which was July 18, and Rev. Schedler's 25th anniversary of ordination as a minister, which was in August.

A short service was held in the church at 7 o'clock with the Rev. O. Heimsoth of Mt. Hulda, delivering the address. After the service the celebrants were ushered into the church parlors, which were decorated with streamers and bells. A basket supper was enjoyed. The Rev. H. J. Gerike, Cole Camp, acted as toastmaster. A program was presented in which the Rev. W. F. Strickert, Sedalia, brought a congratulatory message from the Sedalia Conference. Congratulatory messages were also extended by former parishes served by the Rev. Schedler and various organizations of the church. Lomas Gehrs, president of the congregation presented them a gift. Donald Schedler, spoke in behalf of his brothers, and presented the honorees a gift.

All their children were home with the exception of Edgar, who is enroute home from Korea. Donald arrived from Sanford, Mich., Sept. 4, where he vicaried in Sanford Lutheran Church for a year. He will enter Concordia Seminary in St. Louis to complete his studies for the ministry. Pvt. Marvin Schedler and Mrs. Schedler, state of California, were home for a week. Norman, who is a student at St. Paul's College at Concordia, spent the weekend at home. Victor, who has been employed at Rochelle, Ill., was also present for the celebration.

No Republican Reply to Plan Of Stevenson

CHICAGO (AP)—Eisenhower administration officials were silent on a proposal by Adlai E. Stevenson that the United States seize the cold war initiative by offering Russia a double-edged non-aggression pact and a chance to agree on disarmament.

Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic nominee, told a cheering throng of Democrats who overflowed Chicago's 3,650-seat Civic Opera House last night that "the door to the conference room is the door to peace."

The former Illinois governor laid down—with the backing of former President Truman, Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) and other party leaders—a challenge to President Eisenhower to "think afresh" about offering the Soviets "durable assurances of non-aggression."

If Russia puts impossible conditions on the acceptance of any non-aggression guarantee or declines to participate in an effective disarmament plan, Stevenson said this would saddle on to Moscow the blame for continuance of the cold war.

There was no immediate reaction from Eisenhower's summer headquarters in Denver, the United States delegation in London or official circles in Washington to the Democratic leader's suggestion.

In an interview, Sparkman interpreted Stevenson's statements—made in the form of a televised and radio report to the nation on his recent 26-nation world tour—as "a challenge to Russia to sit down with us at the conference table."

Sparkman, the 1952 Democratic vice presidential nominee, said he and Stevenson feel the Eisenhower administration has not been active enough in countering Moscow's "peace offensive."

"We feel that the United States has not been countering sufficiently the moves which make Russia appear to a large segment of the world as the great advocate of peace," Sparkman declared. "We believe that this peace offensive must be met by action, not just by words."

Stevenson told the nation that in an era where "things are better" for the free world in Europe and "there is hope in the air," the United States cannot afford to be "reluctant to enter" any peace-promoting conference.

"If the Soviet Union rejects assurances of non-aggression, if the Red Army will not withdraw behind its borders, if an Austrian peace treaty and German unification are impossible except on the Soviet's terms, then we will at least have cleared the air," he declared.

Stevenson's proposals paralleled in some respects those made by Eisenhower last April 16 when the President demanded that Russia show by deeds, and not words, the good faith of its peace efforts.

At the summer White House in Denver, Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said President Eisenhower would have no comment on Stevenson's speech.

Stevenson wound up a two-day Democratic conference here with his televised speech, billed as an entirely "non-partisan."

It was a partisan crowd, however, which stopped him short in the middle of a sentence with thunderous applause when he mentioned the name of former President Truman.

Stevenson spoke after Democrats had put in a night of 1936 an incipient row about their national convention's so-called loyalty oath, had voted to give their previously non-paid National Chairman Stephen Mitchell $25,000 a year salary and lashed out at Eisenhower administration domestic and foreign policies.

Mitchell had an opportunity at a news conference today 9 a.m. CST to announce personnel of a committee to study the rules of the next convention and report to it in 1956.

This apparently would take the party-splitting issue out of next year's campaign for control of Congress.

After his formal speech last night, Stevenson launched into a discussion of his findings in his recent world tour, in a sort of informal resume of some of the things he may tell Eisenhower in a planned conference between the two men at the White House soon, had only been to Denver on a vacation.

Eastside Neighbors' Dinner

OBITUARY

Mrs. W. E. Reavis

Mrs. Elizabeth Gentry Reavis, 88, widow of the late W. E. Reavis, died unexpectedly at 4 p. m. Tuesday at her home in Pilot Grove. She was seated in a chair when she suddenly suffered an attack, presumably heart trouble.

She was born Oct. 30, 1864 at Pilot Grove, daughter of Margaret and William Gentry. April 11, 1882 she married Levert Cordy who died May 3, 1905. Later she married Mr. Reavis who died Jan. 3, 1939.

Mrs. Reavis, a sister of Mrs. W. H. Bassett, 423 West Fourth, visited at the Bassett home a week ago.

Several years ago for a brief time she resided in Sedalia but her lifetime as a whole was spent at Pilot Grove, where she was born. There she was a member of the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Reavis was the eldest sister of Mrs. Bassett and besides her is survived by another sister, Mrs. E. B. Edmondson, Kansas City, several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held from Ottumwa to Pilot Grove Wednesday morning to remain until after funeral services to be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Methodist Church. The Rev. Kenneth Oglesby and the Rev. Carl Opp will officiate. Mrs. Robert Painter will sing.

Palbearers will be: W. S. Gentry, Virgil Wolfe, Earl Edmondson, James M. and O. J. Phillips. Burial will be in New Lebanon Cemetery.

Hays-Painter Funeral Home is in charge.

Sisters Buy Flat Creek Inn; Take Over Firm

Two sisters and their husbands have purchased Flat Creek Inn and it all happened rather suddenly. The sisters are Mrs. Ina Cummings, wife of George Cummings, near Houstonia and Mrs. Irene Corvill, wife of Carson Corvill of Harrisonville.

Since 1934 Ina and George have been farming near Houstonia where they have a turkey farm. They too, were originally from Harrisonville, and they have one son Jerome, who is in service in Korea.

Irene, for the past eight years, has been a buyer in a department store in Harrisonville and her husband is with the highway department, head patrolman of maintenance. They have one son Gary, who is in service in New York and one daughter Donna, wife of Robert Hagerty, in service in Canada. Donna is in Canada, too.

For quite a little while Irene has had in her mind that she wanted to buy a dress shop. She has been looking around for one and then while they were visiting her sister in Houstonia they saw the ad in the Sedalia Democrat where the Flat Creek Inn was for sale. The four of them decided that was what they wanted to buy and they didn't waste any time.

Ina and Irene had both had some restaurant experience and they thought that would be just the thing. They could be together in business. The sisters expect to run the business and they just are not too certain about what their husbands intend to do. They both have their own jobs to handle at present.

They hope they can please their customers and serve the kind of meals they will like. The sisters expect to have their husbands there part of the time, too, helping them out.

The transaction was made thru the Donohue Loan and Investment Company.

Mrs. Arthur Short, Stover Teacher, Has Serious Operation

STOVER — Mrs. Arthur Short is slowly improving after a serious operation last Thursday at St. Joseph's Hospital in St. Charles. Mrs. Short is teacher of grades 6, 7 and 8 in the Stover school.

Six members of the WMU of the First Baptist Church met Friday and observed the Day of Prayer for state missions.

Henry Raines, who is at the sanatorium at Mt. Vernon, is improving rapidly and recently visited home folks.

Dr. and Mrs. Roy F. Williams visited their parents in Sedalia and Ottumwa Saturday.

School Bus Inspection Here Thursday Morning

The annual safety inspection of school buses by the Highway Patrol will be held Thursday morning from 9 to 10:30 a. m. at Smith-Cotton High School. The inspection and approval of the buses is necessary in order to get approval and apportionment of state transportation aid from the state department of education.

A time schedule has been set up to include each of the buses throughout the county. On hand to inspect the buses will be Troopers Pete Stohr, Earl Gregory and Ernest Van Winkle. Arthur L. Summers, director of transportation, and district reorganization, state department of education, will also be at the inspection, along with C. F. Scotten, county superintendent of schools.

Anti-Red PWs Demonstrate Over Observers

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Anti-Communist North Korean and Chinese prisoners demonstrated violently today against Communist observers at their compounds in the demilitarized zone.

Prisoners in all five stockades hurled stones and screamed, "kill them, kill the Communists," as Red observer teams drove off for their headquarters at Kaesong, a spokesman for the Indian command said. Indian troops guard the prisoners.

It was the first outbreak since the Indians took added precautions to guard against violence two days ago. At that time they stretched canvas across the barbed wire fences in front of the compounds and moved the observers farther back from the stockades.

The Indian spokesman also said four more North Koreans have changed their minds about repatriation and asked to be returned to their homes. This makes 13 North Koreans and one Chinese who have made the switch.

The U. N. Command Wednesday delivered to Indian custody about 2,000 North Koreans who refused repatriation and said 2,000 Chinese would be handed over Thursday.

Wednesday's delivery raised to 9,800 the total anti-Communist POWs turned over to the Indians. About 14,000 are awaiting delivery.

Meanwhile, the U. N. Command said it will press for an accounting of 3,404 men believed still in Red captivity.

The Communists failed at a meeting of the Joint Military Armistice Commission to mention Sept. 9 demand that the Reds return or account for the missing men.

Maj. Gen. Blackshear F. Bryan, senior Allied member of the commission, told newsmen after the meeting he would ask the Reds about it "before too long."

He added that the Communists probably needed more time to check the list. The list contained the names of U. N. fighting men. Communists were believed to have captured but who failed to return in last month's exchange of prisoners.

It includes more than 900 Americans.

The list was compiled from Communist broadcasts and publications from reports of recently returned prisoners and from other sources. The meeting of the armistice commission produced an agreement on press coverage in the demilitarized zone. One hundred newsmen from both sides will be allowed in the buffer zone daily.

The commission also announced withdrawal from the 2 1/2 mile wide zone of salvage teams which had recovered equipment from the network of bunkers and fortifications on what was once the front line.

The five-nation Repatriation Commission turned over to the Communists at Panmunjom one Chinese prisoner who refused repatriation in the prisoner exchange but who later asked to be sent to Red China.

In all, nearly 23,000 anti-Communist captives will be released by the U. N. Command to the Indian troops under supervision of the Repatriation Commission.

The Communists have said they would deliver 300 South Koreans and more than 200 North-Koreans who refused repatriation to the demilitarized zone Sunday.

Beginning about Sept. 25 each side will be allowed 90 days to try to persuade the POWs to return home.

The fate of those still resisting repatriation then will be debated for a month by the projected Korean peace conference.

Should the conference fail to reach a solution the remaining prisoners will be released as civilians.

Late Summer Continues Over Most of Country

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The late summer spell of pleasant weather continued over most of the country today.

Skies generally were clear and temperatures around or above seasonal levels.

Light rain fell early today in parts of Michigan and central Kansas, along the East Coast and in sections of Florida. A thunderstorm hit New York City late last night. Rainfall measured more than a half inch.

Hot weather continued in the Southwest with temperatures in the high 90's and above 100 again yesterday. Top marks included 111 at El Centro, Calif., 109 Thermal, Calif., 108 at Yuma, Ariz., and 105 at Phoenix, Ariz.

Jefferson City Okay To Two Bond Issues

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Jefferson City voters approved two $100,000 bond issues yesterday in a special election marked by light voting.

A proposal to extend airport runways to permit twin-engine airline service was approved, 2,774 to 1,310, only 154 votes more than the required two-thirds.

A plan to build a trafficway linking up with the south approach of the new Missouri River bridge won by a wider margin, 3,188 to 936.

Governor Names Five On Interstate Group

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly named five state officials yesterday to the Missouri Commission on Interstate Transportation. They serve with five senators and five representatives on the Council of State Governments.

The governor's appointees are: Revenue Director M. E. Morris, chairman; Newton Atterbury, comptroller and budget director; Attorney General John M. Dalton; H. H. Mobley, director of the resources and development division, and Tyne W. Burton, Public Service Commission chairman.

J. M. Johnson, 55, Pleasant Green, pleaded guilty in police court Wednesday morning and was fined $100 on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated.

Johnson's record was produced in court, where he paid a $75 fine on Nov. 27, 1951 for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor; fined $100 and given a stay on a 30-day jail sentence on Sept. 9, 1952, for driving while intoxicated.

Judge R. L. Wehrlich, after investigating the other two cases, ordered the $100 fine and then ordered Johnson committed to the city jail to serve out the 30 days on the stay which was given him on Sept. 9, 1952.

Robert Hall, 1705 South Monteen, charged with careless driving from Broadway and Grand to the Jockey Club on South Limit, failed to appear in court and his $25 cash bond was ordered forfeited.

'Ringrose Circus' Returns Some Money Lost By Embezzling

BALTIMORE (AP)—The "Ringrose Circus" was in town yesterday. It was worth $20,000 to investors in a credit union for social security workers here.

The circus title was hung on the auction of possessions of Mrs. Naomi Martin Ringrose by a policeman on the grounds of her lavishly furnished home. Mrs. Ringrose was convicted of embezzling an estimated $350,000 from the credit union. The auction returned about $20,000 of that amount. Mrs. Ringrose is serving a five-year prison term.

Items auctioned included a $1,700 mink cape, which went for $650, a $400 German camera which brought $225, and a baby grand piano which sold for $550.

Disapprove Governor's Veto—Smith-Cotton PTA Programs Set for Year by the Board

The Smith-Cotton Parent-Teacher executive board met Tuesday evening in the principal's office with all but four board members being present. The president, Mrs. L. C. Kennon, reported the Smith-Cotton PTA received two state awards from the Missouri Congress of Parents and Teachers for the year ending March 31.

They are: the membership award for increasing the membership over the year 1952, and the standard of excellence superior award for meeting the superior requirements.

The calendar for the coming year was outlined and the following schedule made: All meetings, of which there are only four for the year, will be held at 7:30 p. m. on Thursdays; the first will be Oct. 22 with a back to school program under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brummett; Dec. 3 will be Dad's Night and every day with a son or daughter in high school is urged to make a special effort to attend this meeting. Founder's Day will be observed Feb. 11 with Mrs. Paul Houston, the Founder's Day chairman, in charge; the fourth and last meeting of the year will be April 22 and will be the annual open house and will be presented by the Smith-Cotton faculty.

Parent Education classes will be held in November, January, February and March on the third Wednesdays at 2 p. m. in classroom 8, the programs and topics to be announced later. More parents are urged to watch the paper for the dates of these lectures and picture programs as they will be of mutual benefit to all. Mrs. L. S. Peyton is chairman and Mrs. Harold Painter, co-chairman.

The board voted to go on record as disapproving the recent action of Gov. Phil M. Donnelly in vetoing the school appropriation bill, which will mean a loss to the Sedalia Public School system of approximately $42,000 in a period of two years, and urged all persons interested in the schools to write Gov. Donnelly to reconsider.

They also volunteered their assistance to the grade school PTA's on the survey which is to be made in Sedalia in regard to federal aid, which if we qualify, will be of great benefit to the Sedalia Public School system.

The annual fall membership drive will be the week of Oct. 5 thru 9, with the class bringing in the largest number of PTA memberships, on a percentage basis, receiving a special class party at the expense of the PTA. Every parent, both fathers and mothers, as well as relatives and friends, in short, anyone interested in the students, schools and teachers, is urged to give 35 cents membership fee to a student in the class they wish to see win during this period.

Mrs. L. E. Sheridan and Mrs. Leo E. Eickhoff were elected delegates to the state convention, to be held in St. Louis Oct. 13, 14 and 15. Mrs. Sheridan is also the delegate to the district meeting to be held the last of September in California.

The annual style and variety show dates were set for March 18 and 19, the event to be under the direction of Mrs. William Dougherty and L. W. Duly.

Officers for this coming year are: Mrs. L. C. Kennon, president; Mrs. Kurman Riley, first vice; Mrs. Fred Brummett, second vice; Mrs. L. E. Sheridan, secretary; George Williams, treasurer. Board members are: Mrs. Charles Van Dyne, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Rucker, Mrs. Grace Hume, Mrs. L. S. Peyton, Mrs. Virgil Ragar, Mrs. W. J. Knight, Mrs. Verney Engelmom, Mrs. L. W. Duly, Mrs. William Dougherty, Mrs. Harold Painter, Mrs. Paul Houston, Mrs. John Logue, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brummett, Mrs. Helen O. Burns, Forrest Drake, Mrs. Henry Menefee, Mrs. Leo E. Eickhoff, Mrs. W. A. Korando, Miss Hazel Gray, Junior Student Council President, Donald Land Senior Student Council President Carl Matthews.

'Edna' Moves Slowly Up Atlantic Coast

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Edna, fifth hurricane of the season, moved northwest in the Atlantic today with 125-mile an hour winds churning around its center.

The hurricane had slowed its forward movement slightly from 18 to 26 miles per hour, and no land areas lay in its immediate path. The big mass of wind was roughly 650 miles southeast of the Florida coast.

At 5 a. m. (EST) the storm was centered 430 miles east southeast of Nassau in the Bahamas Islands.

Highest winds were over a small area north of the center and extended outward 150 miles to the north and east and 75 miles to the south and west.

The storm was slightly south of east of Miami and shipping in its path was advised to exercise caution.

Kearney Gets Water

KEARNEY, Mo. (AP)—An $83,445 bond issue for a city water system was approved here yesterday by an 8 to 1 margin in a special election. Part of the bonds will be used to pay for a 100,000 gallon water tower and a well, bought from the Burlington Railroad six months ago.

Add Drouth Counties

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department yesterday added 11 Missouri counties to the drought disaster area, making a total of 83 eligible for federal aid in the purchase of livestock feed.

The 11 counties were Buchanan, Caldwell, Carroll, Chariton, Clay, Clinton, Linn, Livingston, Platte, Ray and Sullivan.

Amsterdam Banker Is Distinguished State Farm Banker

BUTLER—E. J. Evans, cashier of the Citizens Bank at Amsterdam, was today awarded the title, "Distinguished Farm Banker of Missouri." Managing officers of banks throughout the state chose Mr. Evans from a slate of bankers recognized for outstanding service to the farm field.

Representatives of "Bank News," a regional bank publication, presented a plaque to the Amsterdam banker at a meeting of the Butler Rotary Club.

A leader in "enlightened farm banking," Mr. Evans has set the pace in state farm program throughout the years, a point recognized by the election. Mr. Evans is best known for his efforts on behalf of the Balanced Farming program in the state. A frequent speaker he has been an enthusiastic advocate of Balanced Farm

Grunewald Has Court Session Set for Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry W. (The Dutchman) Grunewald, much-investigated Washington wirepuller had a date with the judge today that could mean going to jail as a parole violator.

Grunewald, 63, was ordered to appear before U. S. Dist. Judge Alexander Holtzoff (9 a. m. EST) for a hearing on whether he had violated the terms of this year's probation, part of a sentence for contempt of congress.

The hearing grew out of an episode in Jersey City, N. J., last month. Grunewald and Mrs. Ann Anderson 46, were found semi-conscious in a gas-filled apartment there.

Grunewald said he had become ill while driving, had stopped at the apartment of a friend, and that a coffee pot had boiled over and extinguished a gas stove burner.

A Jersey City magistrate subsequently acquitted Grunewald and Mrs. Anderson of disorderly charges.

Edward W. Garrett, chief probation officer for the court here, conducted a full-scale investigation. Grunewald last Friday filed a written report giving his explanation of the incident in Jersey City. After Garrett studied the report over the weekend, it was announced that Grunewald was being called into court today.

Grunewald, long a Washington "mystery man," pleaded guilty in March to a charge of contempt of Congress. Judge Holtzoff in June fined him $1,000 and sentenced him to three months in jail, but placed him on probation for a year instead of requiring him to serve the jail sentence.

The contempt charge against Grunewald grew out of his refusal 18 months earlier to answer almost all questions put to him by House tax scandal investigators. Grunewald's name figured repeatedly in the investigation, which went into his reported association with high officials in the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Asks Exclusive Rights To 'Flying Saucer'

PATERSON, N. J. (AP) — Bruno Nagler is trying to get exclusive property rights to the "Flying Saucer."

Nagler, a White Plains, N. Y., manufacturer, filed suit in Superior Court yesterday claiming the "Flying Saucer" is his and that an "infringing product" is diminishing its value.

He asked $2,500 from McCrory Stores, Passaic, and an injunction stopping them from selling the "Flying Prop," which he says "closely resembles the distinctive design" of the "Flying Saucer."

The "Flying Saucer" and the "Flying Prop" are helicopter-type toys.

He Gets a Ticket, Cop Gets a Complaint

BOGOTA, N. J. (AP) — Joann W. Schneider of Teaneck believes that turnabout is fair play.

While out riding his motorcycle yesterday, he collided with a police car.

Patrolman Henry J. Smith handed Schneider a ticket for driving without a permit, speeding and failing to give the right of way.

So what does Schneider do but sign a complaint against Smith for careless driving.

Wars Now Being Fought With Installment Plan On Costs

NEW YORK (AP) — The nature of war is changing.

In the old days, wars often paid for themselves, particularly as far as the victors were concerned. They yielded a handsome profit in terms of looting, land and ransom, as well as in glory.

Today wars are fought on the installment plan. Win or lose, a nation gets its biggest bill after peace comes — not while the guns are flaming. It costs more to clear up the battlefields than it did to red-ten them.

The expense goes on for generations. Starting certainly by the time of the Civil War, America has found it more costly to pay off its after obligations of a war than it did to foot the bills for the actual fighting.

In the final bookkeeping of any war one of the expense items if the memorials erected to commemorate it. As people think less of war in terms of glory, their attitude toward best how to honor their heroes is changing.

The old idea was to collect as big a sum of money as possible and put up as big a monument as possible, surmounted by a huge symbolic figure or a metal general rigid on a rampant metal horse.

After both the Civil War and World War I, communities tried to

Jack Faber Named To C. of C. Committee

The appointment of Jack Faber to the citizenship responsibility committee of the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce has been announced.

The purpose of this committee is to investigate and explore the possibility of getting the Federal Government eliminated in many programs and bring the governing back to the people. According to the Washington report published by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, 30.5 percent of the general revenue of Missouri for 1952 was for federal aid and Missouri was one of four states in the nation with over 25 percent federal aid.

The idea of the committee is to bring this back to state and local level, instead of national that a larger amount of the revenue will be used directly for local projects, saving tax dollars.

outdo each other in this respect. It was all done in the name of grateful patriotism. A few of these memorials were lovely. But many were sculptural atrocities at the time, and now—although they are the joyful pincers of pigeons—many residents regard them wryly as civic eyesores.

But at best they were only something to look at. They had no human use. And are such passive hunks of metal and marble really the best way to remember the sacrifices of the fallen?

Many communities today don't think so. The trend after World War II was toward memorials that spelled an improvement and betterment of a way of life the local boys had died to preserve—a new athletic field, high school, art gallery, library, bridge, or a civil hall plaque bearing the names of the honored dead. What better tribute can a town pay to the memory of its heroes than to build something to make it a better town?

And what better monument could the American 5th Army have than the one it erected to commemorate its deadly landing 10 years ago on the beaches below Salerno—a nursery and welfare center for Italian children? What finer testimony of what its victory there stands for?

The men who fought there often felt they were in the forgotten war. But the Italian people have a fresh cause to remember them gratefully for a long time.

What kind of memorials will be built to keep alive the memory of the sacrifices of those who died in the Korean War? It is doubtful whether there will be many erected in this country. But the funds America will pour into Korea for the rebuilding of that shattered land are the truest kind of remembrance—out of hate something better.

But the best war memorial is a lasting peace. And if a real peace could emerge from Korea, the world will enjoy the noblest memorial of its history.

US Troops Receive Winter Equipment

SEOUL (AP) — Troops of the U. S. 8th Army are drawing winter equipment and Army spokesmen say all gear is for "a combat army rather than garrison troops."

Lt. Col. Thomas H. Scott, Quartermaster Corps supply chief, said new olive-green wool field shirts and trousers are being issued to all soldiers, along with heavy underwear, gloves, mufflers and mountain sleeping bags.

Next month, equipment for extremely cold weather will be issued.

Shrieks Are Traced To Educated Crow

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — Shrieks of "Help, Velma!" brought sheriff's deputies on the run to the countryside along Nine Mile Creek yesterday.

They found a crow perched in a tree—and two boys who explained that the bird had been trained to squawk for aid. The lads dashed up as one of the deputies was about to shoot the pet of Walter Pope, proprietor of a gasoline station. The officer held his fire.

Mrs. Bridget Gawarski, who lives near the creek reported the cries to the sheriff's office.

Catholics Halt Overalls Fight Against Reds

PARIS (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church called a halt today to its program of trying to fight communism in France with priests in overalls.

Word went out to end the novel experiment begun in 1944.

Into the battle against the five million Frenchmen who vote the Communist ticket the church eight years ago threw student priests who worked among the factory hands at the benches, dock hands in ports and waiters in the nation's myriad restaurants.

Many influential Frenchmen—politicians and clergymen—were shocked during the big wave of strikes throughout the nation last month to find some of the worker priests among the most ardent strikers.

Last Saturday, Pope Pius XII warned priests living and working among laborers to be wary of becoming dupes of Marxist and other social theories the Catholic Church condemns.

The warning was voiced in a letter sent in the Pope's name by the Vatican to Italian ecclesiastical assistants attached to anti-Communist labor organizations. It was understood to have been prompted, however, by the experiences in France.

Asks CAA to Regulate Serving Of Liquor On Commercial Lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capital Airlines has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to step in and regulate serving of liquor on commercial airlines.

Capital had protested last July against the advertising and sale of alcoholic beverages by Northwest Airlines. The CAB's enforcement bureau declined to take action. Capital asked the full board to reconsider.

Capital had asserted that the sale of liquor violated the laws of

7 of the 10 states over which it and Northwest compete, and said this was an "unfair method of competition."

Northwest has contended it obeys all national and state liquor laws in serving drinks on flights.

The 1953 major league baseball season looks as if it's going to be one of those rare years in which the 16 managers who started in April are going to finish in September.

Since they have survived this long it's unlikely that any of the skippers will be fired or quit with only a week and a half to go. Post-seasons changes are another matter.

In only 10 other seasons dating back through 1901—the year the American League was organized—have one set of managers gone through the entire year. The last time it happened was 1947. Before that it was 1942.

Even this year didn't escape without strong rumors. In June the odds were strong that Rogers Hornsby, a familiar figure in mid-season changes, wouldn't be around Cincinnati much longer. Hornsby is still there although he hasn't been rehired for 1954.

A cellar-dwelling outfit early in the season picked up abruptly toward late June and the rumors of a sudden managerial switch died. The Reds now are in sixth place, two games behind the fifth place New York and three ahead of seventh place Chicago.

They beat the giants 4-3 last night and get a chance to shave off another game today.

In other National League games yesterday and last night Philadelphia broke Chicago's 10 game winning streak with a 4-2 decision. Brooklyn edged St. Louis 4-3 on Duke Snider's two-run pinch hit homer in the ninth inning and Pittsburgh beat Milwaukee 7-5.

With the pennant pressure off Cleveland shaded the New York Yankees 1-0 as Bob Lemon won his 20th game. Chicago whipped Boston 6-0 in the only other American League contest.

Robin Roberts, who hit the 20 game victory circle back on Aug. 12, won his 22nd game in stopping the Cubs.

Snider's home run, his 39th, gave Brooklyn its first victory since it clinched the National League flag Saturday.

Young Steve Kraly can't have a very high opinion of the hitting strength of the New York Yankees. The Yankee Rookie has started two games and lost both on shutouts. He gave only four hits yesterday but the Indians put two of them together in the first inning along with a walk to score the one run they needed. Lemon now has won 20 or more games in five of the last six seasons.

Two Maryland Injured, May Miss Opener With Missouri

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — One reason for this, he says, is the failure of some outstanding one-way players of 1952 to develop the knack for playing the other way this year, as is preferable under the limited substitution rule which puts a premium on the fellow who can play both offense and defense.

Bolling it down, the big Terrapin coach is still high on his backfield of Falcione, halfbacks Chet Hannak and Dick Nolan, and fullback Dick Felton. All, especially Falcione, have shown they handle defensive chores as well as move the ball under the intricate split-T Tatum adapted from his old coach, Don Faurot.

But Tatum says he could still use better reserves, especially with Beightol out and the current No. 2 quarterback, Charley Boxold, having shown trouble handling punting duties.

Beightol suffered a stomach injury in Monday practice and Selep a severe burn on his right leg in a scrimmage Saturday. Trainer Duke Wyre said neither probably would be ready for Missouri.

None of the three men was reported on the injury list until early this week. Morgan was taken to University Hospital in Baltimore on Tuesday for x-rays.

The withdrawal of this trio from active training further darkened one of the most disastrous preseason training grinds Tatum has experienced in six earlier campaigns at Maryland.

Three major line-up shuffles were made within the last two weeks, one of the most recent coming last weekend and including the switch of sophomore Bill Walker from first- to second-string left end.

Earlier Herb Hoffman, letterman guard, was dropped from the starting eleven to the No. 2 unit. In the weekend realignment he shipped still another notch to the third string.

Even discounting the late injury to Morgan, Tatum never had approached so close to a Maryland season-opener with such uncertainty about his eleven starters.

Otterville Edges Smithton 12-11

The Smithton softball team, after losing a 12-5 game last Friday night, fought the Otterville High School team to a standstill only to lose again 12-11. Smithton out-hit the Eagles 13 to 7 but their pitchers gave up four more walks. Both teams hit the long ball with Demard and Meyer cracking home runs, Young and Williams hitting triples, and Fletcher, Demard, Burford, and Kindle coming up with doubles. Williams struck out six while Cook whiffed two for Smithton.

Otterville pushed over nine runs in the second on three hits, one error and 5 walks. Smithton came back however with a six run fifth inning to go ahead 11 to 9 only to lose out in the next two innings.

The Smithton girls also had on their slugging tools as they raced to a 27-7 victory over the Otterville club.

The Otterville teams play Clarkdale in the afternoon while Hughesville meets Smithton under the lights at Smithton Thursday night.

Juggle Backs For Sooners' Starting Four

NORMAN, Okla. — The backfield situation at the University of Oklahoma is being kicked around about as much as the football these days.

With the Sooners' big opener against Notre Dame a week and a half away, Coach Bud Wilkinson continues to juggle his starting four in a search for a scoring punch without sacrificing an effective defensive secondary.

The most publicized backfield man, Buddy Leake, is being shuffled back and forth between quarterback and left half. Gene Calame, who played some quarterback last year, has been out with a bad shoulder and Leake is even calling plays for both the first and second teams in practice.

Last year's two safeties, Larry Grigg and Jack Ging, are now halfbacks in an effort to build up the defense for the no-substitution rule.

After last Saturday's scrimmage, Wilkinson promoted Bo Burris ahead of Ging. Burris, an 18-year-old sophomore, is fast and big. The brother of Sooner All-America guard Buddy Burris, he is adept at both offense and defense.

Grigg, the Sooner co-captain, is being pushed by Merrill Green, who played right half last season when Leake was injured.

Fullback Max Boydston, converted from end to give the backfield speed and weight, has an astute understudy in Tom Carroll, a Korean war veteran who looked good as a freshman in 1950 but couldn't get into snaps when he returned to school last fall.

"We've only got 14 or 14 boys capable of playing against Notre Dame," Wilkinson said today in sizing up his squad. "We're awfully light and lack the scoring punch we had last season. However, when the weather turns cooler and our top men can play 60 minutes, we should be a good team."

Wilkinson has been concentrating on defense, which he feels is more important now that the new rule eliminates the platoon system and the Sooners are short on experience.

Practice injuries have hurt the line. Co-captain Roger Nelson has a bad arm ailment and may not get to start at tackle against Notre Dame.

Guard J. D. Roberts, who played on both defense and offense last year, also pulled up lame.

Oklahoma is a one to three touchdown underdog in its home stand against Notre Dame. The Sooners will be far weaker than the club that fell to the Irish, 27-21, last year. That was Oklahoma's only loss, having won eight and tied one.

After the first tilt, Oklahoma must face three more big ones in a row—Pittsburgh, Texas and Kansas.

Except for Oklahoma, practice at most Big Seven schools has tapered off to light drills in anticipation of Saturday's openers.

Surviving Siamese Twin Is Two--

Rodney Dee Brodie Gets Good Luck Candle on Birthday Cake

CHICAGO (AP)—They put three candles on Rodney Dee Brodie's birthday cake today—two for his two years of age and "one to grow on."

That one-to-grow-on candle is a good luck wish that Rodney will reach his next birthday safe and sound.

He may need a little of that luck in the year ahead.

Rodney's chances of having another birthday seemed agonizingly slim on his first birthday a year ago. He and his Siamese twin brother, Roger, were joined extensively at the tops of their heads. A separation operation was on tap and no twin ever before had survived such surgery.

Rodney came through the Dec. 17, 1952 history-making operation which cost Roger his life. He is gaining strength steadily in response to special exercise and treatments. Doctors at the University of Illinois Medical Center give the brown-eyed boy a good chance to live a nearly normal life.

The doctors have described Rodney as reasonably bright, good natured and in fairly good general health. But they have said it is too early to determine whether he is completely normal mentally.

Whether the brain surgery has caused damage to vital centers or the ordeal of repeated operations has left scars on the subconscious are questions that cannot yet be answered. So far doctors say they have found no evidence of mental impairment.

But there is one big surgical problem still to lick that has sent Rodney's doctors into frequent huddles in the last six months. That is supplying a hard roof substitute for his missing skull top.

No decision has yet been made on whether to use bone, metal or plastic and no definite date has been set for the surgery, expected this fall or winter.

They have been preparing for this step since a skin cover was placed over the boy's naked brain March 11 in the 20th operation of the series.

"It is a very difficult undertaking and we don't want to proceed until we have a more concrete idea of how to carry it through," a spokesman said.

Rodney's own skull, shaped like an open stove pipe, extends upward only to an inch and a half above his ears. Surgeons will have to build the skull sides higher and then complete a roof-like cover.

Bone transplanted from other areas of Rodney's body would be ideal for the job but the area to be covered is far too vast for the amount of bone available.

Surgeons say bone from a bone bank will sometimes slough off and pull loose, and that metal or plastic are foreign substances which can cause irritation.

The hard roof will have to be inserted under the transplanted skin that covers the brain and will come in direct contact with this vital tissue.

But like any 2-year-old who knows he's going to have a birthday, Rodney zipped through the hospital pediatric ward on his four-wheel walker today, jabbering and proud.

Oblivious to his condition and the problems ahead, Rodney is a happy boy with a sunny disposition. He still is unable to walk or get up from bed unassisted but his muscle tone is improving with physical therapy. A weakness of his left side muscles that followed the separation operation has all but disappeared.

He is 33 inches tall and weighs 24 pounds and 4 ounces, around normal for a baby of his age.

Nurses gaily bedecked the largest room in the ward and invited the four other children patients to Rodney's party.

Sedalia's Husband With UN Armistice Commission In Korea

WITH THE UN MILITARY ARMISTICE COMMISSION IN KOREA—Major Albert S. Harwell Jr., whose wife, June, lives at 411 North Prospect, Sedalia, is serving with the U. N. Command Military Armistice Commission in Korea. Major Harwell is a member of the Joint Observer Team No. 5, one of the 10 JOTs insuring that the 150 miles demilitarized zone is properly marked, entered only by authorized persons and that only authorized activities take place on neutral ground.

The JOTs function jointly with the Communist teams, as do all groups of the Armistice Commission. After conducting their work they return to their operational and living quarters with the tactical units on their respective sides of the zone.

Harwell, who entered the Air Force in 1940, has the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters, European-African-Middle Eastern Theater Ribbon with nine campaign stars and the American Theater Medal. He has been in Korea since February. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Harwell, live in Rockdale, Tex.

Sen. Maybank Says Demos More United

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Maybank (D-S.C.) today applauded the outcome of the two-day Democratic parley in Chicago and called the party more unified than ever before.

But Sen. Frear (D-De.) said the meeting of the national committee passed up a good chance when it failed to compromise civil rights and other differences between the party's Northern and Southern wings.

"This is the time to settle some of those problems," he said, "not in an election year."

Frear, whose Senate term expires the end of next year, said he does not believe "that the men who represent both sides are so stubborn that they can't reconcile their differences."

But Maybank expressed complete agreement with a decision by the national committee to put off at least for now any formal discussion of the modified "loyalty pledge" adopted at last year's national convention.

This pledge required delegates to use "every honorable means" to get the party's national ticket on state ballots under the Democratic label.

Maybank said the rule was adopted by the convention and could only be rescinded by action of the next full convention. A special study committee was set up at Chicago.

Maybank and Sen. Robertson (D-Va.) praised a decision reached at Chicago not to hold a party convention next year. Conventions normally are held only during presidential election years, but there had been suggestions that one be held next year.

Two Republican senators said the Democrats hurt themselves when they decided to pass over the loyalty pledge issue.

Sen. Carlson (R - Kan.) said: "They're going to have a battle on it, and all they did was defer it to a presidential year."

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) said the postponement "only proved the complete inability of the Democrats to get together."

Imports 11 Saddle Horses to Open Up A Lively Stable

ANDERSON, S. C. (AP)—This may be the atomic age, but M. C. Dickson of Anderson thinks the past had its good points.

Dickson and a partner are importing 11 saddle horses from North Carolina to open a lively stable.

"We're going to have several harness horses available along with buggies for those who wish to revive memories of the good old days, or who want to experience the thrill of driving a fine horse," Dickson says.

"This may sound old timey to some people," he admits, "but it's brand-new to a whole generation and a substantial portion of another one."

Chrysler May Receive New Defense Contract

DETROIT (AP) — A CIO United Auto Workers official said today "wholly reliable" sources had informed him a new defense contract would be awarded Chrysler Corp. for its tank plant in Center Line.

The contract would maintain the plant's present employment of 4,000 when a contract for M47 tanks is completed Nov. 1, reported Norman Matthews, UAW Chrysler department director.

Reveals Weird 'Bug' As Rusty Bulldozer

STORRS, Conn. (AP)—Entomology Prof. Jerauld A. Manter, retiring today after 41 years' service on the University of Connecticut faculty, says that of all the requests made of him to identify birds and insects, the oddest came only this week.

A woman living in the community said she was disturbed by intermittent screeching in the woods near her home, and asked Prof. Manter to find out what kind of a critter was doing it.

He entered the woods, heard the screech and traced it a quarter of a mile to a clearing—where he found a bulldozer, working but in need of lubrication.

Chicagoan Is Trying To Rent Submarine For Cruise In Lake

CHICAGO (AP)—Edward M. Moran says he still is trying to rent a submarine to use for a combined business and pleasure cruise in Lake Michigan.

Moran, who sells plumbers' supplies, thought he had rented a submarine yesterday but discovered he was a victim of a prankster.

Moran said he believed the deal was closed—except for the payment—after a telephone call from a man who identified himself as a representative of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., Kearney, N. J.

He told Moran the submarine would be in Chicago in about three weeks for Moran, who planned to take about 50 guests on the lake cruise. Moran also planned to deliver some plumbing supplies. The owner of the submarine was to furnish a pilot, cook and bartender.

Moran learned yesterday—through his bank—that Federal, a subsidiary of U. S. Steel, is only a name carried on to maintain guarantees on ships the firm built during World War II, that it never built a submarine and operates no yard.

Revises Its Plans For Dean Welcome

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Berkeley's "Welcome Home, Gen. William F. Dean" Committee revised its plans today because the recent freed prisoner of war in Korea didn't want a big celebration.

Dean, a Red captive 37 months, is expected in about two weeks. He's in Tokyo under treatment for amoebic dysentery.

Chairman A. Lee Oder of the Dean Committee said a public reception would be scheduled after the general arrives, but a first-night-home banquet was cancelled.

There will be a basket dinner at the Stover Methodist Church Sept. 13. The dinner will honor the Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Van Leer. Rev. Van Leer will retire from the ministry at the end of this conference year.

Judge Rules Nagging Doesn't Prove Love

CHICAGO (AP)—Nagging by a wife is not a manifestation of love, Circuit Judge Julius H. Miner ruled yesterday.

In so ruling, Judge Miner said he had been unable to effect a reconciliation between Mrs. Cecilia Grutter, 29, and her husband, Karl Grutter, 39. Mrs. Grutter is seeking a separate maintenance.

After Judge Miner expressed the opinion Mrs. Grutter's nagging had killed her husband's love, her attorney, Norman Becker said, "Nagging is one form of love; she didn't want to lose him."

The judge disagreed. He allowed Mrs. Grutter $65 a week support money pending trial of her suit.

Denver Tries to Halt Cigaret Bootlegging

DENVER (AP)—The city attorney's office and tax inspectors here have moved to halt what they describe as possibly a major bootlegging operation in cigarettes within Denver.

Tax officials said that as many as two million packs of cigarettes a year are being sold in the city without the two-cent city tax stamp, representing an annual tax loss of $35,000.

Woman, Family Of Three Vanish From Geneva

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—Police Chief Charles Knecht announced today that Mrs. Donald MacLean, American-born wife of a British diplomat widely believed a fugitive behind the Iron Curtain, disappeared with her three children from Geneva last Friday.

The 37-year-old woman, a native of Chicago, and her children had been living here with her mother, Mrs. Melinda Dunbar, for some months.

MacLean and another British diplomat, Guy Burgess, crossed from England into France in May 1951, ostensibly on a holiday, and have not been seen in the West since. They are generally believed to have vanished behind the Iron Curtain.

In London, a British Foreign Office spokesman declined to comment on Mrs. MacLean's disappearance.

Knecht issued an urgent warning to all Swiss frontier posts, police stations, hotels and garages to keep a close lookout for Mrs. MacLean and her children.

The police also issued a detailed description of the family and of their black American sedan.

Knecht said there was no information so far that the car had crossed the Swiss frontier.

Since the publicity over her husband's disappearance, Mrs. MacLean and the children had lived much of the time in seclusion in France and Switzerland.

Widow Leaves $2,000 Of Estate to Pet Cat

FARMER CITY, Ill. (AP)—An elderly widow willed $2,000 of her $190,000 estate to her pet cat. The will of Mrs. Lena Maude Rankin, filed for probate in DeWitt County Court at Clinton yesterday, stipulated that what's left when the cat dies goes equally to the American Cancer Society and the Illinois Heart Association.

Mrs. Rankin, in her 70's, was found dead in her home Aug. 31. Her cat lay on the bed beside her body. She had no immediate relatives.

Among the will's larger bequests were $45,000 to the University of Illinois and $10,000 to the Palmer School of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa.

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—University of Oklahoma enrollment officials suspected a prank when they found among the new freshmen one named Never Fail.

A check proved he was a real, live freshman. Another showed he had never failed in high school. The youth is the son of Mrs. Frances Fail, Oklahoma City, and Never M. Fail Sr., Memphis, Tenn.

Muscular Burglar Rifles Gym Equipment

DETROIT (AP)—Somewhere in Detroit today a muscular burglar is intent on becoming even stronger.

Police are looking for the burglar who broke into a city athletic equipment storage building last night by ripping some siding off a wall. From a wide variety of athletic gear only a weight lifter's bar bell and a dozen weights were reported missing.

Randolph County Gives Anti-Polio Shots to Youths

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — A three-day program of anti-polio inoculation of Randolph County children is due to start here tomorrow.

Physicians estimate some 4,500 of about 6,000 eligible youngsters will take the gamma globulin shots.

At the request of the state health director, Dr. James R. Amos, the Public Health Service in Washington yesterday allocated 43,000 cubic centimeters of gamma globulin to the county.

The county has had at least 21 polio cases this year, two of them fatal. Both deaths occurred in Moberly.

Randolph is one of 18 counties in the second district of the state Health Department. All the other 17 counties together have reported only 21 cases.

Dr. E. A. Belden, state director of communicable diseases, is helping plan the inoculation program.

The Randolph County Medical Society has pledged full cooperation in the program.

The 1950 census showed that the county's population is 22,918, with 5,285 persons under 15 years of age.

McCarthy Asks Lodge's Aid To Oust 'Red'

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) is seeking aid from Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. in a move to get the United Nations to oust an official who McCarthy says has been aiding communism.

McCarthy announced he was taking the case up with Lodge, chief U. S. delegate to the U. N.

The senator is conducting closed hearings here of his Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, looking into communism among Americans on the U. N. payroll.

McCarthy, who did not identify the American official whose ouster he sought, told newsmen:

"He should be gotten rid of instantly. Regarding questions put to him concerning his alleged Communist activities, that witness had the worst memory of any witness we have had before us to date.

"McCarthy said, however, that the official admitted friendship with Communists and contributions to Red organizations.

The witness, who McCarthy said has been drawing $12,000 a year at the U. N. secretariat since 1946, was questioned yesterday. McCarthy reported his testimony during a luncheon recess of the closed hearing.

McCarthy said the witness, whom he described as "a high official" in the U. N., admitted having pleaded guilty in 1941 to a morals charge involving himself and another man.

The senator said that at a luncheon with Lodge he gave the U. N. delegate "a rough run-down on the stuff we have produced and hope to produce at the hearings."

"All in all, it was a very enjoyable two hours," Sen. McCarthy told newsmen. "There is no question that Mr. Lodge feels as strongly as we do in making sure that no American Communist represents us in the U. N."

McCarthy said he and Lodge had set up a "liaison" on the new investigation into the activities of American Reds in the U. N.

McCarthy said he hoped Lodge would recommend to U. N. Secretary Gen. Dag Hammarskjöld that the agency fire the official questioned yesterday. The senator added that Lodge does not have the power of dismissal.

McCarthy said the official is a close personal friend of a former managing editor of Tass, the Soviet News Service.

The official, McCarthy added, in Vermont within the past month of a man who had been named in committee testimony as the liaison between the Soviet underground and the Communist party in this country.

McCarthy said the U. N. official knew that the Vermont—whom the senator did not identify—had been named by ex-Communist Whittaker Chambers as the Red liaison.

Loses Three Reindeer In Midnight Battle With 400-pound Bear

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (AP)—A rancher trucking reindeer from Alaska lost three of the animals in a midnight battle with a 400-pound bear.

Grady Carothers of Goldthwaite, Tex., shot the bear after it had slashed three of the reindeer. He reported the incident yesterday after reaching this town on the Alaska Highway.

Carothers and his son Jack, 13, had stalked out the deer in a roadside pasture and were asleep when the bear attacked. Carothers said he fought his way through the milling reindeer and killed the bear.

Then they loaded the 10 remaining animals into their trailer and continued the trip south.

GI-South Korean Pact: Romance

Soldier Marriages Are Cementing Our Truce-Time Relationship

By Fred Sparks
NEA Staff Correspondent
SEOUL, Korea (NEA)—We are cementing our South Korean relations with a non-political pact: Marriage.

During these idle hours of truce our GIs, being human, so far from home and so lonesome are forming friendships that will end at the altar. Each week the number of applicants multiplies.

(Old Soldier says: "When an army is on the move, infantrymen collect chickens; when garrisoned they collect wives.")

A good example is Sgt. Richard Marquis, 22. As a combat engineer during his first months in Korea he built roads and bridges under the fire of Chinese snipers. When the fighting sputtered down during truce talks he was shifted to floor walking in the Seoul PX.

It took him exactly two days to pay attention to Miss Kyung Sook, a salesgirl with a slight acquaintance of English. She has a doll's figure. Long thick lashes around her almond eyes meet like a venetian blind and the sergeant wondered what, if anything she could see.

She saw him, all right. Faster than you can spell Syngman Rhee they were strolling evenings through Duk Soo Palace as moonlight shimmered on the lotus pond—or jitterbugging in the EM Club of the 55th M. P. Battalion.

This was no sailor-in-a-port affair. Marriage seemed inevitable despite East and West. Kyung sitting on the floor and Richard brown girls in white robes. Korean wine and U. S. rations mixed equally after the rites.

Today Marquis is one of few GIs here living a family life. With their seven-month-old baby, Ada Leona, they live in a neat house with sliding papered walls.

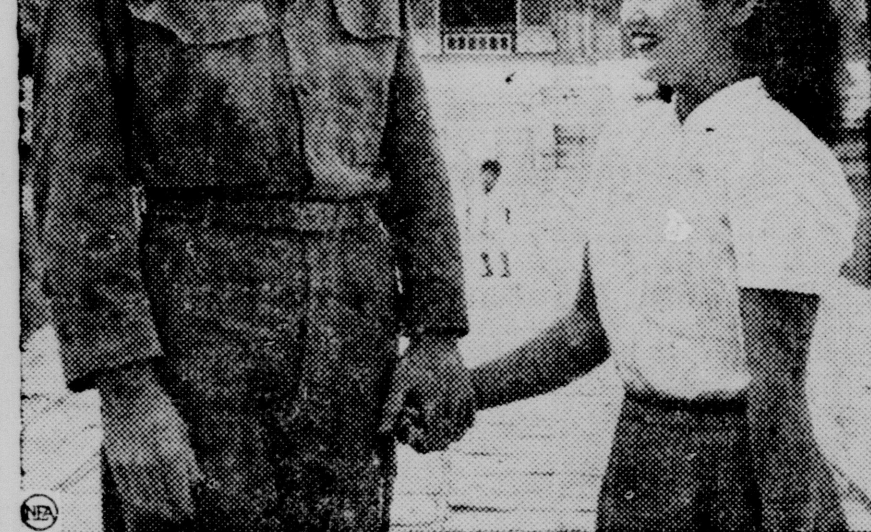

Enroute to his home through the narrow busy alleys of Seoul, his jeep scrapes past ox carts, past the shattered skeletons of half this destroyed capital, vendors selling second hand army clothes, and GIs with rifles strapped to their backs, walking hand in hand with girl friends.

Dick still takes his meals in the army mess hall; Mrs. Marquis can't handle his cooking tastes, although she carefully studies an imported recipe book. She herself still prefers the violently garlicked native dishes and the inevitable rice.

Her clothes come from the "Wishing Book," local slang for U. S. mail order catalogues which the girls thumb through, pointing and saying: "I wish I had that... wish I had this..."

Soon they will sail together for the U. S. for what they know will be a trying adventure to find happiness and security.

Kyung's friends who also married our soldiers and went before them to the States have written mixed reports. Others have returned, admitting failure. And

Fox Marquee Will Blink Its Lights To Salute 'Robe'

In a unique salute to the gala New York premiere of "The Robe" the world's first motion picture ever filmed in CinemaScope, the Fox Theatre will blink its marquee lights in the Navy's 73 code, traditional message of good luck, precisely at 9:04 p. m. tonight.

Coinciding to the minute with the lavish debut of Twentieth Century Fox's multi-million dollar technicolor spectacle at New York's Roxy Theatre, the light signal, never before duplicated in the history of the entertainment world, will flash simultaneously from a huge network of film theatres throughout the entire country, Joe Ruddick, manager of the Fox pointed out. The marquee message, he said, will herald the dawn of the CinemaScope era, officially recognized as the most important event in the annals of Hollywood since the advent of sound film.

While the availability of all necessary equipment for the presentation of CinemaScope in Sedalia will determine the date of its local debut, Ruddick states that he now has the all-purpose Miracle-Mirror CinemaScope screen and framework and that it will be installed in the next few days.

The giant, panoramic screen is more than 19 feet high and will measure some 33 feet in width, with a concave depth based on a radius of 110 feet. The revolutionary new stereophonic sound is also on order for the Fox and shipment is expected in the very near future.

"The Robe," which opens the CinemaScope era in the motion picture industry with the premiere in New York, is based on Lloyd C. Douglas' best-seller and was brought to the screen with a cast of thousands headed by these stars, Richard Burton, Jean Simmons, Victor Mature and Michael Rennie. The picture, ten years in preparation and a year in the making, was produced by Frank Ross and directed by Henry Kostor.

back here an ex-wife, a divorced woman, is so much tragic baggage on the streets, scorned by all.

But the Marquis are determined, somehow, to prove that Kipling was wrong about "East is East and West is West."

Hardest Working Gal at White House Gets Rest

Mamie's Un-social Summer Gives Mary Jane McCaffrey a Chance to Loaf

By PATTI SIMMONS
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The hardest working gal at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue is turning into a loafer, but fast.

No more sitting up until midnight with White House homework. No more verbal sparring with the press ladies, at least until fall.

In fact Mary Jane McCaffrey, Mamie Eisenhower's girl Friday, admits she's all of a sudden slowed down to an eight-hour-day. She is enjoying the First Lady's un-social summer every bit as much as the boss. But the Mamie-Mary Jane team rates it after last winter.

To date Mrs. McCaffrey has done her best to handle most of the social secretary chores with one hand while tackling her own personal secretary post with the other. If Mrs. Eisenhower plans to appoint a social secretary she'll probably do it in the fall.

It was at one of the first press conferences ever staged for her boss that Mrs. McCaffrey won over the staff side of the fourth estate.

A masculine interloper surprised everyone present by asking for a detailed description of Mrs. Eisenhower's bed jacket. He then demanded to know whether the First Lady preferred a bath or a shower in the morning.

Unflustered, Mrs. McCaffrey furnished the description of the bed jacket—blue silk with short sleeves—then neatly ducked the other question, declaring "that comes later."

Mrs. McCaffrey has the background and experience plus the poise and good nature for what is one of the most unpredictable and important roles inside the White House.

Hardly out of Hunter College, Mrs. McCaffrey tangled head-on with protocol. One of her first jobs was executive secretary to the New York World's Fair vice president in charge of entertaining foreign diplomats and state officials.

When the fair closed she found herself with a stable of thoroughbreds, a number of cattle and hogs, plus a sizeable farm and

Submersible Video Camera To Probe on Lives of Fish

By FRANK CAREY
AF Science Reporter

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—University of Wisconsin scientists will use a submersible television camera to snoop on the private lives of fish—and possibly gain information of aid to commercial and sport fishing.

They'll head out today on beautiful Lake Mendota, bordering the university campus, for the first underwater television system developed by the National Research Council of Canada.

The Canadian equipment was brought here for exhibition at the annual convention of the American Institute of Biological Sciences (AIBS), which ends today.

The "pickup" camera itself is housed in a waterproof steel cylinder 3 feet long and 18 inches in diameter which is equipped with lights for illuminating the area in front of the camera. The camera, lowered into the water by a small crane, is connected by a flexible conducting cable to a television screen on shipboard. An operator seated in front of the screen can maneuver the camera cylinder under the water by manipulating controls on a panel near the screen.

The apparatus was given a trial run yesterday for the visiting biologists. The test was held at dockside in only eight feet of water. Not a fish or a mermaid showed up on the screen while this observer watched, but you could see the plings of the pier and also the hand of a diver held close to the camera's lens.

Canadian demonstrators of the equipment said it's possible to observe a diver's whole body and that the apparatus has many possible applications, including commercial and naval salvage operations. They said biological explorations have been carried on with "excellent results" to a depth of 100 feet.

The Wisconsin scientists will use the equipment for several days. "Conceivably," said Dr. A. D. Hasler, one of the researchers, "we might gain information that might not only aid fish production and management in this and other lakes where fishing is for sport but might also establish principles of value in connection with commercial fishing in the ocean."

He said the Wisconsin tests necessarily would be limited in scope because of the brief availability of the equipment, but he added:

"I believe that this new research tool would be of great aid in observing the spawning conditions in the springtime—something about which we know virtually nothing. Also, we won't know anything about the behavior of fish under the ice in wintertime. Some types are never caught in the winter. Where do they go? Maybe television will help us find out."

Just five years ago Mrs. McCaffrey, who's brunette and plenty attractive, met her husband on a Guatemalan cruise. They live in a six-room house in Rock Creek Hills with an Irish setter "Pat" and a cat called "Mike."

Mrs. McCaffrey dabbles a bit in oil paintings and has occasionally watched the President working with his brushes. She's never discussed the hobby with her boss' husband, however.

"You don't interrupt an artist while he's working," she smiles.

Joplin Charter Group Uses Manager-Council Plan in New Charter

JOPLIN (AP)—Joplin's Charter Commission voted unanimously last night to embody the city manager-council form of government in the new charter which it will start writing this week.

The charter will be submitted to the voters in a few months, probably in February.

The commission reached its decision on the manager-council plan after more than a month of study and public hearings. Joplin has had the commission form of government since 1913.

Plymouth Hy-Drive

Newest, smoothest, least expensive no-shift driving in low-price field

Thousands of motorists today are enjoying the spectacular performance of Plymouth Hy-Drive

It's Smooth

—one flowing motion!
No noises, jerks or lurches in going from one speed to another. Your car can't up-shift or down-shift on you unexpectedly.

It's Powerful

—for a fast, positive getaway. There's no racing of the engine to get started, no "winding up."

It's Versatile

—holds your car without using the brakes while halting on a hill. You get good engine braking going downhill. You can use the clutch for more exact control in "rocking" out of mud or snow.

It's Economical

—both in original cost and in upkeep. There's no complicated mechanism to get out of order or to adjust and maintain.

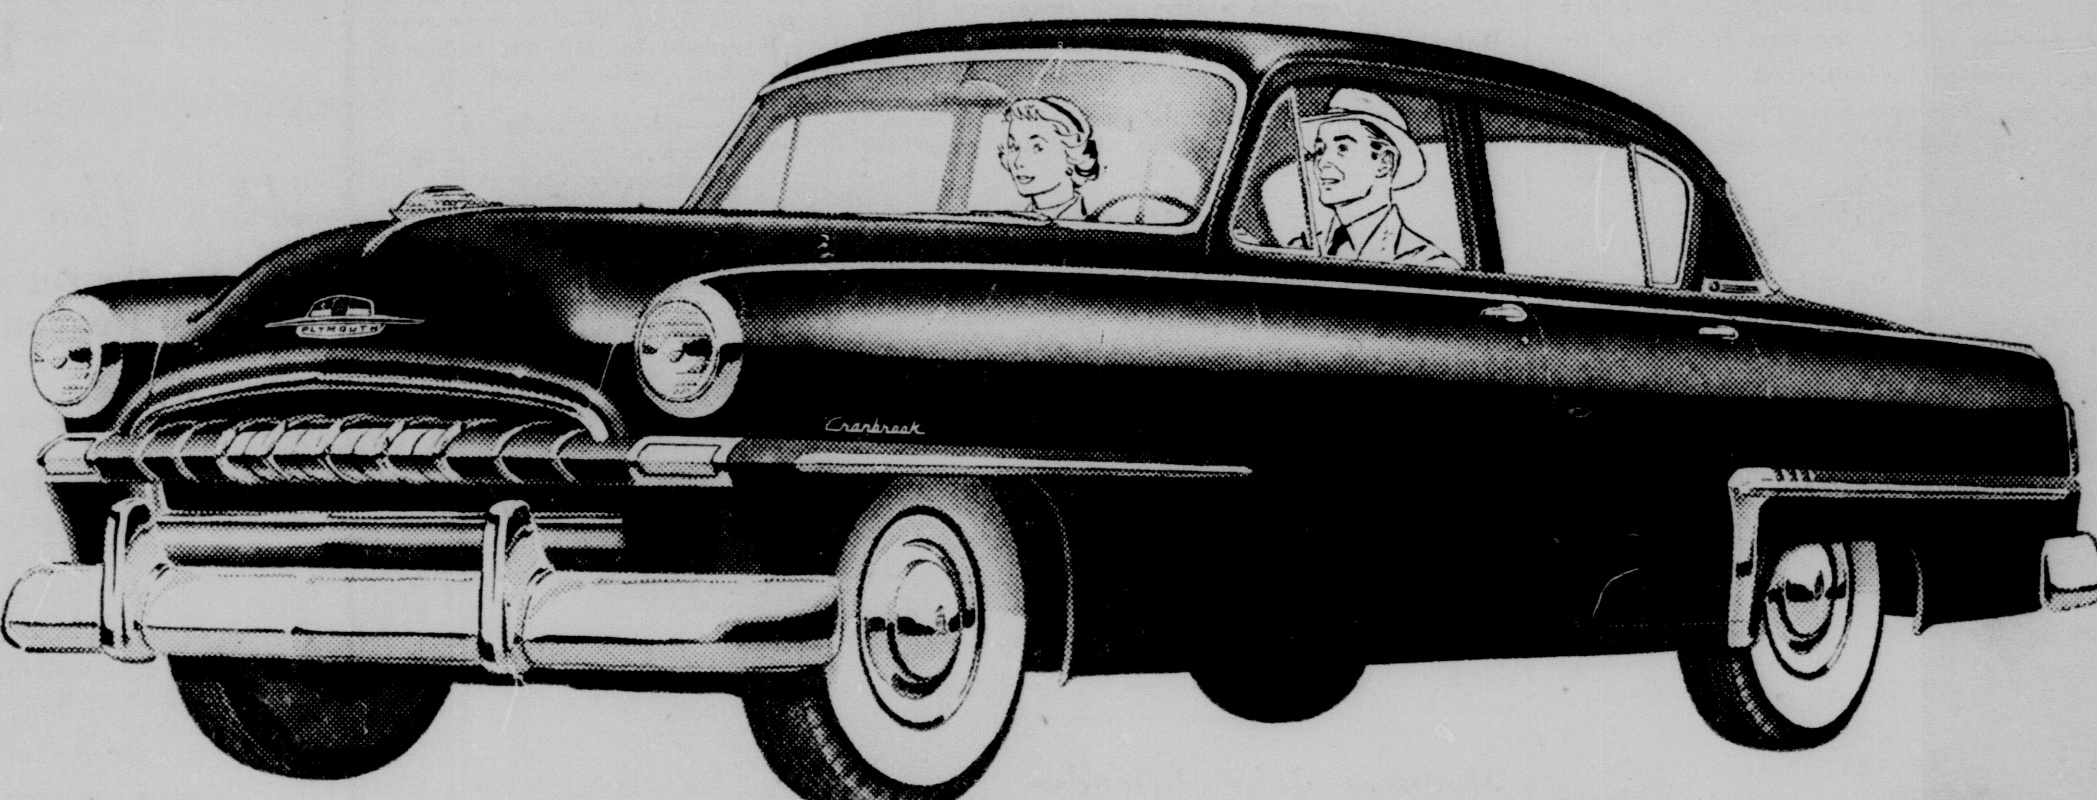

"It saves me around 2 gallons of gas each day," says this rural mail carrier

"Vic" Hammer is a rural mail carrier out of Appleton, Wisconsin. He drives the same route every day. He has 400 boxes, which means lots of starting and stopping. He used to use between 5 and 6 gallons each day.

Recently, Mr. Hammer purchased a new 1953 Plymouth equipped with Hy-Drive*. He is now using between 3 1/2 and 4 gallons of gas a day on his route.

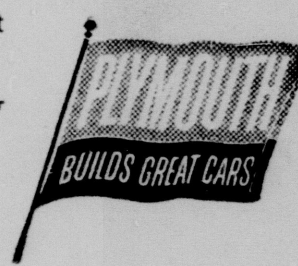

"I think this is an amazing performance," Mr. Hammer says. "I'm saving around 2 gallons of gas for the route each day. And it's 100 per cent easier serving the route now that I no longer have to shift gears."

Merry-Go-Round Two Big Background Issues May Revamp Democrat Party In South

By Drew Pearson

CHICAGO—Despite all the talk pro and con about Southern loyalty at the Democratic whop-fest, there were two big issues in the background which may completely revamp the Democratic party below the Mason-Dixon Line. These were not discussed much publicly here, but to thinking party leaders they are all-important.

One of them will hurt the Democratic party at the next election. The other will help. Here they are:

1. What will hurt the Democrats—the Republicans are making real hay toward reorganizing a two-party system below the Mason-Dixon Line. Alert, live new leaders, many of them ex-Democrats, are throwing out encrusted Republican carpetbaggers and, for the first time since before the Civil War, are beginning to make the Republican party respectable in the south.

2. What will help the Democrats—President Eisenhower plans to go "states' rights" with a vengeance — especially when it comes to putting each state on its own in regard to social security, old-age pensions, public roads, power-dams and other projects which syphoned more money to the south under 20 years of Democratic rule than any other time during history.

Ike's Confidential Tip

Ike unfurled this plan confidentially to a group of Republican governors at the recent Seattle Governors conference. Though he didn't let Democratic governors in on his secret, naturally they heard about it and some of them are not happy.

However, many Republican governors are. They claim that what happened in the last 20 years is that the federal government has taken money out of the wealthy states of New York, Pennsylvania, California, Illinois and Ohio, for the most part Republican, and spent a greater portion than justified on the lower-income states of the south. GOP governors also point to the power of congressional appropriations committees, for 20 years headed by southern Democrats which have leaned toward rivers and harbors, dams, and farm payments on southern products.

President Eisenhower, it should be noted hasn't looked at it as a matter of north vs. south. He has no ax to grind against the south. But in private talk after talk he has emphasized the importance of getting the states to bear their proportionate share of taxation. He wants to pass the tax burden back to the states out of the hands of the federal government.

This means of course that poorer southern states will be considerably worse off economically than during the 20 years of Democratic rule.

And this the northern Democratic leaders believe is going to swing the once solid south back into line. Some already point to the fact that Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, who emphasized during the tidelands oil fight that Texas wanted no support from Washington, promptly reversed himself during the Waco hurricane and the Texas drought to ask aid from Washington; and that Gov. John S. Battle of Virginia, another vigorous states' righter, now would appreciate federal help as a result of Virginia's recent drought.

All this, predict the Democratic brain trusters, should help the Democrats to recapture all southern states at the next election.

GOP Organizes South

On the other hand there is no question but that Republicans are doing a shrewd and helpful job in trying to build up a two-party system in the south.

Despite all the fumbles of the past they may succeed.

They have done such a good job that men like Sen. Harry Byrd, who helped throw Virginia to Eisenhower last year, is worried. For the first time in half a century the Republicans have put a candidate in the race for governor who may have a chance—if the anti-Byrd, pro-Stevenson Democrats take revenge on Byrd and vote Stevenson. In other words, Byrd, by throwing his weight to Eisenhower last year, helped to undermine his own once airtight control of the state. The same is true in Texas, where Governor Shivers, also an Ike man, has frowned on Republican efforts to organize the state. What worries Shivers is that if enough conservative Democrats turn Republican then the liberal wing of the Democratic party, led by Sam Rayburn and with the help of such influential ralliers of the Spanish and negro vote as Maury Maverick, could take Democratic control away from the governor.

Similar situations are developing in other southern states. In Louisiana the Republicans have put out John Jackson, long-time GOP national committeeman, on the sidelines and are working through smart, progressive John Minor Wisdom, a lawyer who has the respect of everyone even though he is a Republican. It is important to remember that in the past few Republicans were respected in Louisiana.

Likewise, in Georgia, Republican patronage is being handled by Albert Tuttle, general council of the U. S. Treasury, and as a result of his organization work Republicans will put up local candidates for the Georgia legislature in about 20 counties for the first time since reconstruction days. They will also run some candidates for congress in districts where prospects look worth while.

In South Carolina a live-wire Myrtle Beach businessman, William A. Kimbel is cleaning out the rusted GOP leadership of the past. Kimbel, Ben Botwright, Gus Doshier and George Warren are working at something Republicans never worked at before—organizing their party in the state where Fort Sumter was fired on.

How successful their efforts will be remains to be seen. But GOP plans call for a lot of money to be spent in the south the next three years, and Democratic leaders figure that some of their southern colleagues who scorned the Chicago meeting will be all too happy to come back to the fold a little later.

Pains of Angina Caused By Restriction of Blood Flow

By EDWIN F. JORDAN, M.D.

Each year a considerable number of people for the first time develop symptoms of angina and naturally become exceedingly curious as to this disorder and what it means to them.

Pain in the chest, often running down the left arm and coming on after exercise like climbing stairs, always raises the suspicion of angina pectoris. Sometimes the pain is severe and sometimes mild. Unless the pain is absent when resting and appears only on exertion, a different cause is more likely.

The coronary arteries carry blood to the heart muscle. Because the heart muscle works so hard, it needs a great deal of blood and any interference with the amount of blood passing through the coronaries brings trouble.

In angina pectoris the coronary arteries do allow some blood to pass through to the heart muscle. However, the passageways are narrowed by deposits of fat-like substances or calcium. Thus, when the heart has to work harder as it does when exercising, the amount of blood going through the coronaries is not enough.

At such times the effects of insufficient blood are shown by pain in the chest and often a feeling of anxiety, shortness of breath and sweating. As a rule these symptoms clear up rather rapidly after the exertion is stopped. At rest the heart does get enough blood. As soon as rest is begun the heart does not have to do so much work and the blood which it receives through the arteries becomes ample.

Angina pectoris is related to coronary thrombosis, though the two are not the same. In angina pectoris, the interference with passage of blood to the heart muscle is not complete; in a coronary thrombosis, a clot forms inside one of the coronary blood vessels and completely shuts off the passage of blood to some part of the heart.

Symptoms Vary

The symptoms and severity of angina pectoris vary a great deal from person to person. Some have only occasional attacks of pain and find it easy to avoid the exertion which will bring on symptoms. In others, there seems to be a much smaller passageway for the blood and even slight exertion causes pain.

The gloomy future for those who developed angina which was held in the past is no longer justified. With better knowledge of treatment, many of those who have angina live a great many years with only occasional attacks. If someone with angina stays within the physical limits of his condition, a lengthy and contented life is by no means unusual.

Special Issue Voters Should Think of the Nation's Welfare

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

When this country's wheat farmers recently voted on keeping price supports, one reaction was: "Isn't it wonderful that in this country men who are directly affected by a policy get a chance to express their views on it?"

The answer is, yes, of course it is. It represents a kind of economic democracy hardly practiced at all in other countries. In this case, an attitude which previously was only imperfectly gauged is now well documented. The farmers want supports, and are willing to pay the penalty of controls to get them.

Enthusiasm for this sort of democratic expression ought, however, to be carefully tempered. We want to know what the wheat farmers and the lettuce growers and the miners and textile workers think about the policies that affect them most closely. But we don't want to encourage them to think of themselves primarily in those working roles.

First and foremost, they are American citizens. And as such they are fathers, consumers, potential soldiers, participants in community living, seekers after sport and recreation, as well as workers or farmers.

When they vote, they surely cannot be expected to ignore the considerations which they believe closely affect their jobs. But they must be encouraged to balance those relatively narrow, selfish concerns against the broader interests of the country at large.

More than that, they must be urged to realize that the greatest self-interest does not necessarily coincide with the highest immediate cash benefits for their particular work.

In the long run, for instance, they might gain more by measures which curb inflation and thus enhance their position as buyers. Or from expenditures for defense which genuinely impress the Russians and thus reduce the threat of war. What does it mean to have voted right as a wheat farmer if you find your son toting a gun in European or Asiatic combat?

The special referendum on an economic or other issue can be a fine and necessary thing. But the individual who marches in to vote on such a matter ought not to forget he is voting just a part of himself. He ought to remember his other interests. And he ought to remember his country.

That's A Dog's Life

The life of a dog in Hungary is now about what you would expect. His owner must pay the equivalent of $10 for a license to keep him, and on the Communist wage and living scale, that's a lot of money.

The manufacture of dog food is banned and restaurant owners are prohibited by law from selling scraps to dog owners. Dog catchers patrol the streets for any dog not on a leash. Any dogs caught are taken to the zoo to feed the wild animals.

Manners Make Friends—

Which is easier—to telephone your wife from the office to tell her you are going to be late to dinner and explain why—or to neglect the telephone call and try to explain to an annoyed wife why you couldn't help being late?

The first is easier, of course. And it is better marriage manners, too.

'Your Move--But I'm Warning You--Don't!'

The World Today— Ike-Adlai Agree, Disagree

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson are agreed on wanting disarmament talks with the Russians but not, it seems, on how or when.

Eisenhower, in his April 16 speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, told the Russians that before such talks could begin he wanted them to show by deeds they had goodwill.

Stevenson, in his Radio-TV report to the nation last night on his world tour, laid down no such terms but, apparently, would like to see disarmament discussions get started as soon as possible.

Efforts by this country in the late 1940's to get Russia to agree on a disarmament plan got nowhere. The Russians balked at the kind of inspection this country wanted made everywhere to prevent cheating.

The problem was tackled by the United Nations but has been frozen in a U.N. icebox for years.

Stevenson said, "once more, I think, we should fix our sights high again, as we did in 1947, and resume the initiative in re-exploring the possibility of disarmament."

What makes Stevenson think the Russians, who stood like stone against American attempts at disarmament in the past, would be likely to act any differently now?

For one thing, Stevenson said, there is the hydrogen bomb which emphasizes more than ever the need for disarmament since the alternative is even heavier armament and "more frightening weapons."

And besides, he indicated, there have been some events which may have affected Russian thinking in recent years: Stalin's death; revolts in the satellites; the realization that Russian threats had driven the West into big rearmament and that the West, as it showed in Korea, would meet force with force.

Stevenson did not suggest this country disarm while seeking agreement with Russia or world disarmament. On the contrary, he expressed fear this country might be getting too careless about rearmament enough.

In his April speech Eisenhower called upon the Communists to show their good intentions in various ways: A Korean armistice, a peace conference on Korea, an end to Communist attacks on Indochina; an Austrian peace treaty; a united Germany and "full independence" of the East European nations.

Of the points he listed, progress has been made in only two: There is a Korean armistice and the Korean peace conference is scheduled to open in late October, if the Communists don't delay it.

Eisenhower didn't say every condition he laid down had to be met, signed, sealed and finished before he'd consider talking disarmament with the Russians again. But he did say he wanted some progress made.

"As progress in all these areas strengthens world trust," he said, "we could proceed concurrently with the next great work—the reduction of the burden of armaments weighing upon the world. To this end we would welcome and enter into the most solemn agreements."

Stevenson did not mention this Eisenhower speech, or the President's terms. And if he thought the President was showing too much inflexibility in the present world situation, he did not say that.

But all through his speech he cautioned the administration not to be too "inflexible" in its foreign policy.

Democrat Pick-Ups

Odds and Ends

When Mrs. Marguerite Peabody, wife of Leonard Peabody, found out that Anita Whittle was going to Honolulu to join her husband, she asked Anita to look up her uncle there.

"I sure will," said Anita. "He is a jeweler," said Marguerite, preparing to give Anita his address. Anita began looking in her purse. "That's queer," she said. "I have the name and address of a jeweler there I am supposed to look up."

She pulled out the piece of paper and the first glance Marguerite saw the name of her uncle on the paper.

"Why that's my uncle," she told Anita. "Where did you get his name?"

"Well," said Anita, "It was given to me by my father-in-law's second wife. He is her cousin."

"Then," said Marguerite, "What relation does that make us? We certainly must be related in some fashion."

Anyway — when Anita gets to Honolulu she is certainly going to look up the jeweler. By this time she not only feels like a very close friend, but she almost has a feeling he is a long lost relative. — H. L.

THE sign across the front of the gray concrete building said, "Horace M. Goodfield Doll Corporation, San Francisco, Calif." Standing stiff and flat-footed on top of this sign was a wooden doll 20 feet high. Years of sun had bleached away her smile and left her hair a dusty gray, and the fog that rolled in from the bay had blurred her eyes. They stared vacantly out at the passing ships, like the eyes of a heathen idol watching without interest or concern its foolish worshippers. The doll's name was printed across her flat, faded chest: Sweetheart.

Frank new from the noise of machines that the factory was operating, but he had the impression that it would stop at any moment, freeze into immobility like the wooden doll.

The old man sitting in a chair at the entrance gate matched the building. No one cared about him either. He looked at Frank, rubbing the arthritis-swollen knuckles of his hands.

Frank noticed that he was wearing a shoulder holster. "You work here?"

"Worked here for 22 years." The old man spoke in a monotone. "First I was inside. I painted their faces for them. Delicate work, but I had good nerves. My hands got bad, though. So then they gave me this here chair and this here automatic and says, now you're a guard, Charley. Charley's my name."

"Mine's Clyde. Ever use the gun?"

"Once. A fellow broke in and I shot at him. I missed. Turned out he was a maniac crazy about dolls."

"You've worked for the Goodfields a long time, eh?"

"Twenty-two years, like I said. Why I gave Sweetheart up there her first coat of paint."

"She looks as if she could use another."

"Nothing gets done around here any more at all since old Horace died. Not that Horace was any great shakes as a businessman, but he cared. He was an artist. Why, single-handed, him and me designed Sweetheart, clothes and everything."

"What happened after he died?"

"They buried him."

"You have quite a sense of humor, Charley."

"I could always look on the funny side of things."

"Now try looking on the other side. What happened to the factory after Horace died?"

"Nothing happened except one day a guy shows up with a lot of begonia bulbs. Planted a dozen of them in this here very spot where I'm sitting."

"Why begonia?"

"Because Horace left the whole factory, lock, stock and barrel, to his wife, and she thought it'd be kind of pretty to have some flowers growing around."

.....

THE fog was beginning to blow in from the bay, like dirty gray sheets on a moving clothesline. Somewhere close by a fog horn bellowed. Charley shivered, and turned up the collar of his leather jacket.

"I saw Willett Goodfield and his wife last week," Frank said. "They're in La Mesa, down south. Very comfortable."

"That's the only way they know how to live. Yet they'll be pulling in their horns one of these days. Wait'll the old lady dies and they got inheritance taxes to pay."

"If she's already given them the stock, there won't be any inheritance taxes."

Charley stared at him with reluctant approval. "By George, you're right. Never thought of that myself. But there'll be other things, make no mistake about that. When the old lady dies, there'll be a good old-fashioned bust-up. Do you know Shirley?"

"No."

"Shirley's the Goodfield girl. Widow with four kids now but she was a girl when I first saw her. She's the only one of the family with a head on her shoulders. Takes after Horace, even in looks. Shirley couldn't stand the old lady. Left home when she was 17 and got married."

"Where does she live now?"

"Horace's place up on Nob Hill. It's a good big place with plenty of valuable and antiques in it. When Mrs. Goodfield left to go traveling around, she didn't want the house to be empty, so Shirley and her kids, they have the first floor, and Jack, he has the second. That way it saves rent, and the valuables and antiques get looked after."

"What's left of them after the kids get through?"

A tall, young man in a dark business suit walked briskly down the step toward the gate where Charley was sitting. The man had curly straw-colored hair carefully parted to disguise the thinning circle on top. He walked as though he took pride in his body and kept it in the best of physical condition.

"Charley."

THE old man straightened up, making a funny little sound that was barely audible.

"Yes, Mr. Jack."

"I've had to warn you before about standing around talking like this."

Jack Goodfield gave Frank one s.w.e.e.p.i.n.g. and contemptuous glance, and then marched back into the building like a general who hadn't discovered that his army had been cut down behind him.

The air inside the building was very warm and dry after the cold dampness of the fog. At the desk where the workers punched the time clock, Frank was directed to Mr. Goodfield's office and was told his secretary Mrs. Hiller would be there.

True Dreams, Band Soloist

One Sedalian has become a believer in dreams, only now he's wondering and worrying about what will be dreamed-up next.

They are not his dreams, but those of his wife. Sometime ago she dreamed a friend, who had been a widow, was going to get married. Two days later she learned the friend had become a bride. Then she dreamed the furnace was going bad—and it collapsed a matter of hours after she awakened and laughingly told friend husband about the dream.

Last weekend she had another slumber vision and saw the rear tire on the family's car as flat on one side. It seemed the tire was bad along the inside.

Husband, now convinced his wife's dreams were more than nightmare, went out to look at the rear tire as soon as he heard her tale. But the tire wasn't flat—so her dreams-to-reality had ended.

But, Sunday, a day after the flat-tire-from-the-sandman, the family drove to visit some friends and the friend, seeing the car, spotted something wrong with the right rear tire. Seems there was a bad spot on the inside of the tire and it was going down.

We have learned that a Sedalian was once a member of our favorite band—Phil Spitalny's All-Girl Orchestra. She was known then as Inez, but is called Betty by her friends here.

Annabel, who is one of the featured vocalists with the orchestra now, was Inez's chum in the band and they formed a vocal duet that was quite popular for the more than a year that Betty was with the musical group as a trumpet soloist.

About three years ago we sat almost spellbound for four hours as the orchestra played in Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium at a special event for the Shivers. The girl played for nearly two hours on a set program and then started filling requests from the audience.

Not once during the evening was there a piece of music on the stage, and never did Mr. Spitalny hesitate when the audience asked

Elephants Crumble Concrete for Drink

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—British Navy men stationed on this island commonwealth have found out an elephant really never does forget—particularly where he gets his drinks.

The sailors selected a site for a jungle station including a water-hole long used by elephants, but the naval engineers thought a concrete fence would keep the previous consumers away.

The first night the camp was occupied, two elephants broke through the concrete to reach the water hole.

Sub-teenagers In New York Begin Learning to Save $$$

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Everyone knows New York City is inhabited by a bunch of fast-living grasshoppers who toss away their money with no thought of the morrow.

Yep, that's us, fellows. If we can't spend our dough quick enough with both hands, we kick it away with our feet. As the old adage reminds all of us — "Who wants to be the richest guy in the cemetery?" A guy who isn't living beyond his means just isn't living.

But guess what's happening—right here in the neon-lit midst of the world's greatest one-way primrose path. Why, a herd of thrifty young ants is spring up, a generation infected by the old squirrely idea that it pays to put away a few acorns for a rainy day.

Who are these young codgers? Well, they were turned up in a survey of 3,620 children between 6 and 11 years old. And it turned out that one out of five already had somehow or other picked up the old-fashioned habit of saving part of his pocket money each week. Most averaged between 25 and 30 cents.

The survey, made by the Gilbert youth research organization for the Washington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Association, estimated that the city's 1,000,000 sub-teenagers are stashing up to $150,000 a week in their piggy banks. This, of course, includes emergency withdrawals to help their parents out of a tight spot.

The bankers thought this showed a mighty healthy attitude on the part of the young savers. But an old waster I showed the figures to only grumbled enviously:

"Imagine children of such tender years having a sum like $150,000 a week within reach of their grimy little paws. I trust the little monsters are saving it for a sensible purpose, such as buying mink coats or entertaining chorus girls." However, the kids who indicated any immediate goal for their savings mentioned such typical small fry investments as model airplanes, doll dresses and bicycles.

Where do city children get their money? How much do they get, and how do they spend it? What do they really know about the value of money? The survey came up with some interesting answers.

Over half the kids get a regular weekly allowance. The majority of those in the 6-7 age bracket got 26 to 50 cents; those 8 to 9 from 51 to 99 cents; those 10 to 11 from 51 cents to a dollar or more. Only 10 per cent reported the best they could knock the old folks for was a dime or less.

One out of every five said they fellow to get his dukes on dough the more reluctant he is to fritter it away on a grammar school blonde.

The average teen-ager consumes six candy bars and 5.2 bottles of pop a week. But the favorite vice of the 6-to-7-year-old child is ice cream, about seven servings a week if he can buy them. His interest in wilder pleasures — ice cream sodas, candy and pop — picks up as he matures.

It was estimated the kids gulp down 8 billion plates of ice cream a year. If your child says wistfully, "Gee, I'd like to have all that"—well, tell him that if he ate a serving every minute, it would take him 15,360 years to eat it all. And, of course, all he'd say to that is, "I guess I wouldn't have to hurry, would I, dad?"

As to the movies (hold on, Hollywood, bad news ahead!), the survey said a majority of 6-to-11-year-old children went to the movies at least once a week 10 years ago, but now only 10 per cent do. In six out of 10 homes the kids reported Hopalong Cassidy now rides into their living rooms via television—for free.

When asked what they or their parents could buy for a penny, 841 of the 3,620 kids said flatly, "nothing."

Cancer Movie Shown Before Optimist Club

"The Warning Shadow" was the title of the picture shown Tuesday noon at the Optimist Club meeting at Bothwell Hotel by Curtis Schupbach. The Rev. J. W. Watts, program chairman for the day, introduced Mr. Schupbach.

The film had been secured from the State Cancer Society at Jefferson City and concerned a doctor who found he had lung cancer in 1933, underwent surgery for the removal of a lung and recovered. The educational film on cancer urged that everyone over 45 have chest x-rays twice a year for, with the first shadow of lung cancer, the removal of the lung will eliminate cancer, otherwise it may

Black Crow Challenges Parakeet for Honors As Speedy Student

TRENTON, Mo. (P) — A homely black crow is challenging a sparkling blue parakeet for classroom honors here.

Donald Branham, a junior at the University of Missouri, told his father a parakeet wasn't any smarter than any other bird.

"I can take a plain ordinary crow off your farm and teach him to do anything you can teach that parakeet," Donald told his dad.

His father, Adam Branham, Trenton, accepted the challenge.

Donald found a nest and picked up two baby crows. He named them Amos and Andy.

The elder Branham's first job was to tame his parakeet, by putting soap on one wing so he could not fly. From then on the training was easy.

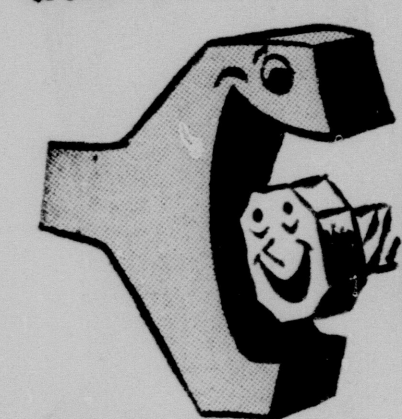

The parakeet, named Bob, proved a good student. But Amos was a better one.

Within six months, Amos had said "Hello."

Bob chattered but still hadn't produced any words clear enough to be recognized.

Neither master has conceded defeat in the battle of birds.

Their Toys Sit and Wait When the Men Go to War

OSCAR HIGLEY with a toy panda and other oddly assorted possessions left behind by soldiers when they shipped out for Korea.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Hundreds of articles left behind by men on their way to war at the Armed Services Y.M.C.A. here are as faithful as the little tin soldier, red with rust, in the poem.

A three-foot high toy panda sits patiently, gathering dust. A model airplane and a cowboy hat bear the same check number.

Oscar Higley, 68, custodian, sometimes dusts them off. Most of the men, who checked the odd assortment of trinkets, souvenirs and personal effects, were outbought to Korea. Almost 15,000 servicemen used the lockers in the storage room each month. Some forget to call for their belongings, others don't have time before going aboard transports and a good many expect they will be there when they return.

Higley gets 1,000 letters a year about these left-behind items and some carry heartbreaks. They come from mothers, wives and families of men asking that the contents of the lockers be sent to their homes. The men themselves will never call. Higley found a diamond ring in one box. Several months later, a sailor came in with a claim check.

Many pets have been checked, but there was one that Higley refused. It was a diamond-back rattlesnake.

Scientists Seek to Stretch Growing Season Chemically

By FRANK CARLEY
AP Science Reporter

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Scientists are planning to explore the possibilities of chemically speeding springtime and delaying winter as far as crops are concerned.

This was made known Sunday at a conference of some of the world's outstanding experts on solar energy already available to agriculture—and also to tap a virtually wasted bounty of solar radiation as a power for homes and industry.

The idea of the chemical "crop season extension" would be (1) to hasten the opening of planting season a couple of weeks by spreading chemicals on the snow or frost-covered ground to promote melting, and (2) chemically treating the ground during growing season so as to absorb enough solar heat to delay Jack Frost's attacks for another couple of weeks at season's end.

But scientists told reporters at a news conference in connection with the meeting that, while the objective is one justifying intensive research, the problem will be to find chemicals that would trap the sun's energy—and release it under controllable conditions.

One scientist said the Russians claim to have achieved good success in speeding springtime in the Soviet by spreading coal dust on the snow to trap rays of the sun.

The conference's solar experts, including about 30 Americans, two Canadians and one scientist each from Australia, Israel, India, Italy and South Africa, ends today.

The need for research into various conceivable uses for solar energy was underlined at the news conference by statements made by Palmer Putnam, Washington, D.C., an engineering consultant to the government. He asserted that if the present "increasing" rate of power demand continues—and under-privileged countries are developed as envisioned by some authorities—the economically recoverable resources of regular fuels, such as coal, will give out in about 70 years. On the same basis, he added, the atomic fuels, uranium and thorium, will last only 175 years.

Dr. G. O. G. Lor, Denver, scientific consultant to the American Window Glass Co., said his firm has supported research on solar

Transfer Given Amos Owens

Boy, 11, Begins New Life After Public Opens Its Heart

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy is in school for the first time in his life because "too many people love me for me to die."

And little Odell Leon Hall has about 300,000 pieces of mail to prove his theory.

A little more than a year ago—in July, 1952—when it was feared the youngster was near death from several ailments, including hardening of the arteries and heart disease, he sent out this plea: "Won't somebody please write me?"

His request, picked up from the Associated Press, brought letters of encouragement and gifts from all parts of the world.

After that, says his mother, Mrs. C. R. Hall of Nortonville, Odell began to show gradual improvement and to walk again with the aid of a cane.

Last week, he hobbled into White Plains School, eager to learn to read so he can preach some day. "I'm going to work for the Lord," he says.

The Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years

New Conoco Super Gasoline with TCP

Boosts power as much as 15%! Increases spark-plug life up to 150%! Gives you extra gas mileage, too!

Here's the most revolutionary advance in motor fuels since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922—new Conoco Super Gasoline with TCP, brought to you by special arrangement with Shell Oil Company. TCP is Shell's trademark for the remarkable additive originally developed for aviation fuels.

Now you can actually enjoy the benefits of an engine tune-up—just by changing to new Conoco Super Gasoline. Chances are, by the time you've finished your second tankful, you'll feel the increase in power. And you'll keep that extra power just as long as you use Conoco Super.

For Conoco Super with TCP is a new kind of gasoline. It overcomes the greatest single cause of power loss affecting most of the cars on the road today. Now, you can enjoy all the power that was built into your car.

Why you need

Conoco Super Gasoline with TCP

In the average automobile, the by-products of fuel combustion constantly build up deposits on spark plugs and in combustion chambers. These deposits can "cheat" you of power in two ways. First, they actually short-circuit your spark plugs. This causes mis-firing. Second, deposits in the combustion chamber get red hot and cause the fuel to ignite before it should. This is called pre-ignition or "wild ping." The effect of fouled spark plugs and pre-ignition is a loss in power and a waste of gasoline.

CROSS SECTION OF TYPICAL SPARK PLUG

Combustion deposits form here, causing mis-firing and loss of power. TCP neutralizes these deposits, giving top power and performance.

How TCP works

TCP is a special chemical additive which is added to Conoco Super Gasoline. It was specifically developed to overcome the loss of power and fuel caused by combustion deposits. TCP neutralizes harmful deposits on spark plugs—your plugs spark as they should. It prevents deposits in the combustion chambers from causing pre-ignition—"wild ping" is controlled. Thus, every time you fill up with new Conoco Super, it's like getting your spark plugs cleaned and your engine tuned-up.

TCP helps your car, whether new or old

If you are driving a new car, with a high-compression engine, you need Conoco Super Gasoline to keep your car delivering all the power that was built into it. It will actually increase spark-plug life up to 150%. If you drive an older car, with tens of thousands of miles on the speedometer, Conoco Super can restore much of the "new car", performance and power you've been missing.

Yes, a great new era in motoring is here for you. Drive into your Conoco station today and fill your tank with new Conoco Super Gasoline with TCP. You'll feel the difference by the second tankful!

Questions and answers about New Conoco Super Gasoline with TCP

Q. What is TCP?
